THE CITY OF PITTSBURGH BURNED TO WATER'S EDGE; THREE SCORE REPORTED DEAD, MANY BADLY INJURED

A TERRIBLE disaster took place early yesterday morning by the burning of the great steamboat, City of Pittsburgh, in the Ohio river, 24 miles above Cairo, Ill. At least 60 lives were lost. One-half of the victims were officers and members of the boat's crew. The others were passengers. Among the lost is a son of Archie M. Allen of Pittsburgh. Capt. John M. Phillips of Pittsburgh, commander of the steamboat and one of its owners, is among those who escaped. The City of Pittsburgh had a crew of 70 and more than 80 passengers.

The steamboat left Cincinnati Wednesday evening and Louisville Thursday evening, bound for Memphis, with a heavy cargo. The fire broke out at 4 o'clock in the morning. The passengers and most of the crew were asleep. Aroused by the cries, smoke and flames, a panic resulted. Efforts of the crew to fight the flames were thwarted by the rush and confusion. Boats were handled and lowered with difficulty, but most of the women and children were saved. The steamboat was run to the bank but was a mass of flames before she grounded. Passengers were forced to leap into the water and were carried away by the swift current. Boats put out from shore and rescued a few. Those who landed suffered greatly from exposure, as no houses were near. The loss of many of the crew resulted from their devotion in remaining on board to fight the flames.

NEWS SUMMARY

STEAMBOAT DISASTER.

Sixty lives were lost by the burning of the steamboat City of Pittsburgh in the Ohio river, near its mouth, before daylight yesterday. Half of the victims were passengers. Crossed electric wires are blamed for the fire.—Page 1.

The only Pittsburgh victim of the disaster was Ardue Allen, 9 years old, only son of Archie M. Allen, an accountant living in Belmar place, Homewood. Father and mother are among the saved.—Page 2.

The City of Pittsburgh was owned chiefly in this city. The largest single owner was Albert L. Brahm, a well-known meat dealer in the Diamond market. Capt. John M. Phillips of this city was in command of the boat and was one of the owners. He and his son Oliver escaped. Capt. Wesley Doss was lost.—Page 2.

Stories of the survivors, who were taken to Cairo, show that the terrible panic which occurred when the sleeping passengers were awakened was largely responsible for the loss of life. Efforts of the crew to fight the fire and lower the boats were almost paralyzed by the wild confusion.—Page 2.

The City of Pittsburgh was built at Marietta in 1898 for the Pittsburgh and Cincinnati trade. She was too heavy for the upper river, and was transferred to the run between Cincinnati and Memphis. She had various misfortunes and was nearly destroyed by fire at Cincinnati last summer.—Page 1.

The wife and daughter of Capt. Phillips were severely poisoned by canned mackerel at Cincinnati last Wednesday. This prevented their making the last trip on the boat, and probably saved their lives.—Page 2.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cairo, Ill., April 20.—One of the most appalling river disasters of recent years occurred this morning about 20 miles above here on the Kentucky shore, four miles above Turners landing.

The beautiful and palatial boat City of Pittsburgh, on her way from Cincinnati to Memphis, was under full headway in midstream, when shoots of flame were seen issuing from her forward hatches. The alarm was given and Pilot Harry Doss headed her for the shore. Several of the crew rushed through the cabins awakening passengers, many of whom were sleeping so soundly that the doors of the state rooms had to be forced open.

Fire Too Swift For Escape.

The passengers rushed from their berths in their night clothes to escape the awful doom that seemed impending, and although the boat had by this time been run ashore on a bar, her forecastle was all in flames. The fire spread rapidly on both sides of the cabin, cutting off escape forward.

Many passengers jumped overboard to escape death by fire; some fell into shoal water and escaped drowning; others who fell in deeper water were kept afloat by life preservers. So rapidly did the flames envelope the boat that there was only one yawl manned, which picked up all who were able to keep afloat. Many sank. The upper frame work of the boat was destroyed in five minutes.

Names of the Known Lost.

The destruction of the steamer's books made it impossible to furnish a complete list of the missing. Following are the names of those missing or known to be lost.

Son of A. M. Allen of Pittsburgh, aged 10.
Child of Pilot Al Pritchard of Memphis.
Clay Breeze, wife and son.
Mr. Adams of Ohio, bound for St. Louis.
Mr. Downs of Memphis.
Patrick Burk, wife and six children of Owensboro, Ky.
Girl named Sweney of Owensboro.
L. L. Hunter of Litinti, Pa.
Three children of Mrs. Fannie McCullom of Leavenworth, Ind.
Capt. Wesley Doss of Cincinnati; body recovered.
Miss Marie Tissim of Canneiton, Ind.; body recovered.

Members of the crew missing:

Joe Redding, Cincinnati, striker engineer.
Fred Jones, Newport, striker engineer.
Tom Smith, Memphis, striker pilot.
William Bollinger, Cincinnati, first steward.
Henry Thomas, colored, Cincinnati, second steward.
John Botts, Cincinnati, cook.
Tony Gilfoyle, Cincinnati, baker.

The following members of the crew whose names are unknown:

First pantryman.
Three colored firemen.
Six cabin boys.
Two chambermaids.
Six or eight deckhands.
Miss Mary Lister of Carrollton, O.

Long Exposure on Shore.

The passengers and crew who escaped were compelled to remain without shelter and food, with only their night garments to protect them, from 4 a. m. until 3 o'clock this afternoon, when the steamer Maud Kilgore, going up the river, passed the scene of the disaster, turned about and took the survivors on board, bringing them to Cairo at 5:30 p. m.

They were in a melancholy plight, wet, shivering, half famished and almost prostrated with the excitement and fright of their experience. All had lost everything they had with them and several had seen loved ones perish. Kind citizens had collected clothing for the unfortunate ones and made them as comfortable as circumstances would permit.

Full List of Dead Unknown.

It is not known how many lives were lost, but the number is estimated at between 60 and 70. The boat's books, records and papers were burned, and the names of the missing cannot be secured and the names of all those who escaped cannot be given. There were about 70 passengers registered when the boat left Paducah and there were 15 or 20 children on board who were not registered, which would make the number of passengers about 85, besides the crew. The following are known to have been saved:

Some Who Were Saved.

James Neville, Dayton, Ky., boat carpenter.
Emma Smith, Paducah, passenger.
Archie M. Allen and wife, 239 Fourth avenue, Pittsburgh.
L. M. McGraw, Louisville, Ky.
Mrs. Judge Mulkey, Metropolis, Ill.
Arthur Sheley, Buckner, Ky., watchman.
Mrs. Tunny Myer, Point Pleasant, W. Va., badly burned, and her daughter.
Margaret Bridges, Louisville, Ky.
Jennie Bessick, Lexington, Ky.
C. M. Stallons and wife, Careysville, Kentucky.
Head Mate Shimers and wife.
Miss Leech, badly burned.
Pilot Pritchard, wife and child.
Miss Marie Lisler, Carrollton, O., died after being brought on shore.
Sylvester Doss also died after getting on shore.
The captain, clerks and engineers, two engineers, stokers, two cooks.

Estimate of Captain Phillips.

Capt. Phillips says the loss will be from 50 to 60 lives. Half of these were passengers, the other half members of the crew.

At 7 o'clock this evening three bodies had been recovered. They were those of Capt. Doss, Miss Marie Tessim and the youngest of the McCullom children.

Mrs. Flinnmore and daughter of Arbuckle, Pa., were badly burned and are now in the hospital here. Mrs. Lummerer and Mrs. Linch of Pt. Pleasant, W. Va., were also badly burned.

Caused by Electric Wires.

It is the supposition that the fire originated in the hold and that it was caused by crossed electrical wires. The boat and her cargo are an entire loss.

Flames Broke Out Forward.

The fire was discovered at 4:05 a. m. It started in the forward hatch larboard and burned fiercely when the steamer ran ashore. Escapes were made over the cabin railing. Very few passengers or members of the crew were aware of the fire until it was too late. The captain and clerk late tonight claim in all 80 persons have been accounted for, leaving 60 people lost or unaccounted for.

Most of the passengers were still in bed when Second Clerk Oliver Phillips gave the alarm. The engineers at once started all the pumping engines while the crew brought all the hose into play.

Frightful Was the Panic.

Amid the streams of water on all sides, the flames from the lower deck and dense clouds of smoke, the passengers rushed from their staterooms and a frightful panic ensued. The appeals of the officers and crew could not appease the terror-stricken crowds that interfered with those throwing water on the flames, as well as with those working with the lifeboats. Few could adjust life-preservers or do anything for themselves.

The smoke was stifling. Great clouds floated through the blazing steamer, choking the passengers and adding to the terror. Children cried pitifully, begging that they be saved. Life-boats were manned and every effort was made to save the passengers from the floating furnace of flames.

People on Shore to the Rescue.

From the river banks the sparks from the burning craft and the dense clouds of smoke, tinged with flames, made a most impressive and weird spectacle.

Boats were sent from shore to help in the work of rescue. Boats, laden to their limit with passengers in the scant attire they were able to gather, were landed at the river banks. As fast as the boats could be emptied they returned to the ill-fated steamer, the rescuers losing no time from their work.

Death by Fire and Water.

The burning steamer was quickly headed to the bank, but passengers were forced to jump from the stern, and trying to swim ashore, through the swift current, many were drowned. Many also perished in the flames. Only one yawl was saved, without oars and the women were taken off. About 20 or 30 were

WHOLE SEASON LOST ON HOT COMPETITION

Severely Fire-Scorched at Cincinnati Last Summer—Narrowly Saved from Total Destruction—Poisoning of Mrs. Phillips Keeps Her from Fatal Voyage.

The steamer City of Pittsburgh, destroyed by fire yesterday near Turners landing on the Ohio river, has been an unfortunate boat. Her principal owners are all Pittsburghers, and the vessel was one of the most widely known that plowed the waters of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. The boat was commanded by Capt. John M. Phillips of Pittsburgh, and her chief clerk was Capt. Dana Scott, a resident of Zanesville, O. Oliver Phillips of Pittsburgh, a son of Capt. Phillips, was the second clerk.

The vessel was built at Marietta, O., by M. G. Knox & Son, in 1898, and upon her completion was brought to Pittsburgh. The steamer was originally intended to make one round trip every week between Pittsburgh and Louisville. Before engaging in the river traffic between the cities mentioned, it was decided to start the steamer on her maiden trip from Pittsburgh to New Orleans.

Boilers Would Not Work.

In February of 1898 she left Pittsburgh with one of the largest passenger trips ever carried out of this city on such a long journey. The trip was a success except as to speed. Her owners had experimented with a set of Scotch marine boilers, and they could not be made to work properly. Most of the time on the trip the steamer could make only 60 pounds of steam, so after her trip was completed, she was equipped with the old style boilers and made a few trips between Pittsburgh and Louisville. Then the low water season set in.

The boat was found to be entirely too large for the upper Ohio river. On account of the great size of the vessel it was with difficulty that she could be brought to Pittsburgh on a 5-foot stage of water in the Ohio. The boat had to abandon the trade.

Hot Competition on the Lower River.

The following year the steamer engaged in the trade between Cincinnati and Louisville and this caused a fierce contest to be waged between the owners of the Pittsburgh and the White Collar line of packets of Cincinnati. The Pittsburgh carried passengers from Cincinnati to Louisville and return for 50 cents the round trip, and Commodore F. A. Laidley, president of the White Collar line, put a boat in the trade with the Pittsburgh and started her out every trip that the steamer made, Laidley's vessel carried passengers for 25 cents the round trip, a distance of 160 miles each way. Capt. Phillips would not be driven out of the trade, however, and stuck it out an entire season. It is said that the boat did not make any money. After the low water period set in the Pittsburgh went to the bank.

Compromise on the Memphis Run.

In the intermediate time the White Collar line of Cincinnati lost several steamers by accidents and this caused them to be short of vessels for the Cincinnati and Memphis trade, so, instead of waging war against the owners of the Pittsburgh, Commodore Laidley offered Capt. Phillips a day in the Cincinnati and Memphis trade. Capt. Phillips chose Wednesday and for the last two years the boat made trips between the two cities, leaving Cincinnati every other Wednesday.

Since the boat has engaged in that trade she has met with several accidents. Last year while going over the falls at Louisville she had a narrow escape from sinking in the swift rapids. She struck a pier of the Louisville & Nashville bridge and tore off her guards, but fortunately did not break the timbers in her hull below the water line. The boat struck the pier a side glance. She had a tremendous trip of freight aboard and a large number of passengers who were badly frightened.

Partly Burned Last Summer.

Shortly after this episode, the steamer caught fire at Cincinnati while lying at the wharf. The fire occurred during the early part of last summer and by hard work and the prompt arrival of the Cincinnati fire department, the steamer was saved from being totally destroyed.

The boat probably would have gone to her doom, but for the prompt action of one of the crew. The roustabouts were getting ready to cut her lines and set her adrift when one of her officers drove the rousters off of the boat.

The Texas cabin of the steamer and part of her main saloon were damaged, but after a month tie-up, the repairs were completed and the boat again resumed her trips to Memphis. About three weeks ago one of the officers of the boat shot and killed a colored roustabout on the steamer. The shooting took place at Tiptonville, Mo., and it is said was done in self-defense. The officer who did the shooting was arrested, but acquitted.

Last Wednesday while the boat lay at

DONOR OF THE SCHOOL HERE TO EXAMINE PLANS

Great Ironmaster Arrived Unexpectedly Last Night and Will Be Here Three or Four Days.

Andrew Carnegie arrived last night for his final visit to Pittsburgh, prior to his sailing for Scotland the last of the month. He will spend three, possibly four days here. His arrival, by the Pennsylvania limited last night, was rather unexpected, though it had been announced that he would be present at the dedication of the new Carnegie library in Carnegie tomorrow.

Mr. Carnegie left the limited at the East Liberty station, and was immediately driven to the home of his cousin, George Lauder, No. 7403 Penn avenue. There were no callers during the evening, except one or two personal friends.

Will Visit Mills.

Mr. Carnegie will probably not be down town today, his plans having been, as announced early last week, to visit the Homestead steel works on the first day of his stay. It has been some time since Mr. Carnegie visited the great plant and there are improvements and new machinery for his inspection, that will probably occupy most of the day. Tomorrow he will go to Carnegie, leaving in the private trolley car of President J. H. Reed of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, to participate in the dedication. The people of Carnegie have made great preparations for his reception.

To Confer on School.

Much of the balance of Mr. Carnegie's stay in Pittsburgh, even if he remains over Thursday, will probably be occupied in conference with the directors of the Carnegie Institute, and with the committee on scope and plan of the great polytechnic schools. The scope and plan committee, assisted by three experts, worked hard all last week getting their data and plans in shape to be submitted to the donor of the polytechnic school some time today or this evening. The chairman of the committee, William McConway, is not ready with a detailed report, but the plans are in much better shape than they were at the time of Mr. Frew's last conference with Mr. Carnegie, two weeks ago, in New York.

Institute Developments.

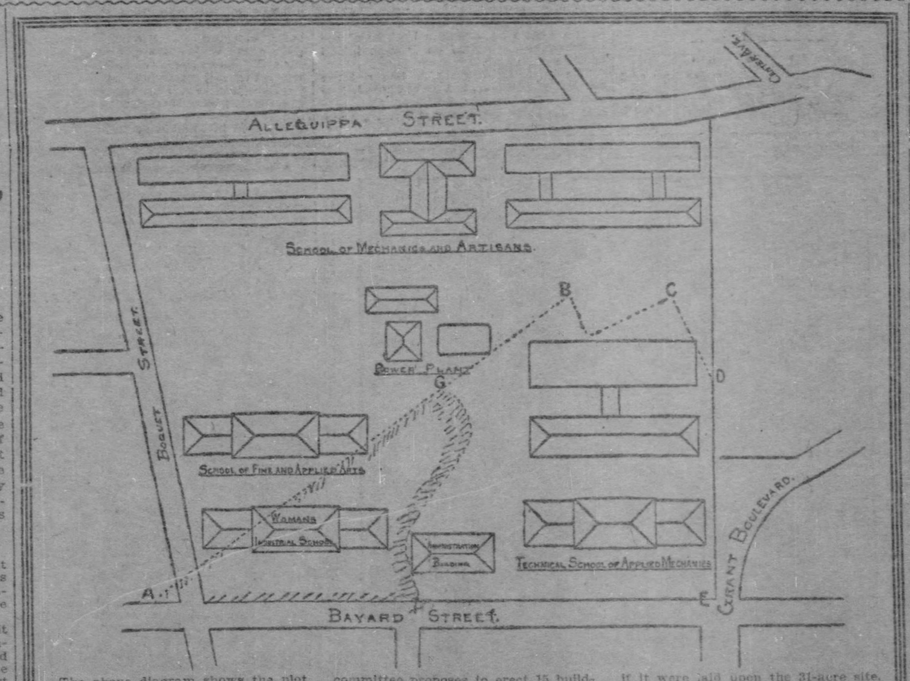
Since Mr. Carnegie paid his last visit to Pittsburgh important developments have occurred, both in the Carnegie Institute addition plans and those for the new polytechnic school.

The courts recently decided that it was within the power of the city to condemn the land needed for the proposed addition to the institute, but the case has been appealed to the higher court by the owners of the property which was condemned, as they allege that the price placed upon their holdings is away below its value, and the city has never made an effort to strike a fair bargain with them.

Want Matter Decided.

A special effort is being made by both sides to have the case decided at the earliest possible moment in the higher court, and the power of the city in the matter definitely outlined by the judges' decision.

The plans for the addition are practically complete and await only the decision on the condemnation of the site to be carried into immediate effect.



The above diagram shows the plot of the proposed site and buildings of the Carnegie Polytechnic school. The site consists of 31 acres of the western section of the Schenley property, situated between Bayard, Bouquet and Allquippa streets. The west side fronts on Bouquet street and the east side faces 30 additional acres belonging to the Schenley estate. The plot of ground is about 1,000 feet long, between Bayard and Allquippa streets, and the Allquippa street side is 200 feet higher than Bayard street. The plan and scope committee proposes to erect 15 buildings on this site for the various departments of the polytechnic school. All the buildings will be within the view of Fifth avenue. The center building on Allquippa street will be two stories in height and the four buildings at the ends will be one story high. The buildings at the lower left-hand corner will be three stories in height, and the right-hand structures will be one story. As shown in the drawing the buildings will be in pairs and connected.

The dotted lines marked A, B, C, D and E show the area of the 11-acre plot on Forbes and Bouquet streets if it were laid upon the 31-acre site. The section marked by A, G and F show that portion of the Forbes-Bouquet street site which the plan and scope committee say would be unavailable by reason of the hollow which runs through the property. The committee states that only six of the 11 acres are available for buildings. The Forbes-Bouquet street is the one originally picked by Mr. Carnegie and the Bayard-Bouquet-Allquippa street site is the one selected by Chairman William McConway, Prof. J. A. Brashear and O. P. Scaife, members of the plan and scope committee.

THE EXPERTS WILL PRESENT REPORT TO MR. CARNEGIE

Preliminary Plans Formulated for Pittsburgh's New Polytechnic School and Larger Site Is Favored.

The experts employed to formulate plans for the new Carnegie polytechnic school have completed their investigations at the local industrial plants and have furnished the plan and scope committee with a number of suggestions in reference to the site, the number and character of buildings and the curriculum to be adopted for the institution. The result of their investigations will be presented informally to Mr. Carnegie tomorrow. The experts who were employed by the plan and scope committee to do this work were Arthur Hammerschlag of the Grant Manual Training school of New York city, W. L. Williston of the Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, and Clifford Connelly of the Western university, Allegheny. They spent last week here and completed their work, although a full report will not be rendered for about two weeks.

Andrew Carnegie arrived here last night and will confer with the experts today. According to William McConway, chairman of the plan and scope committee, the experts have recommended a larger site for the school than the 11-acre tract at Bouquet and Forbes streets, adjoining Schenley park, and favor a portion of the hillside property, situated between Bayard street, Allquippa street and Center avenue, known as the "Schenley farm," consisting of 31 acres.

Cost About $500,000.

It is estimated that this property will cost about $500,000. As the city is to furnish the site for the school it is the intention of the plan and scope committee to ask councils to use the appropriation of $360,000 voted for the purchase of the 11-acre site on Bouquet and Forbes streets and add to this another appropriation of $140,000 to make up the necessary $500,000 for the other site.

Negotiations are in progress with Mrs. Schenley, who is in Europe, for the purchase of the property and the plan and scope committee hope to have the matter in shape to be presented to councils in the very near future. Councils will be asked to take the initiative regardless of the action of the city administration.

Followed Carnegie's Plan.

Chairman McConway of the plan and scope committee said yesterday that the experts were instructed to regulate their plans in accordance with the wishes of Mr. Carnegie, who had suggested that the lower branches should be taken up first. The recommendations contained in the report of the plan and scope committee for the Carnegie high school were adopted for the manual training institution.

"The committee of experts made a thorough investigation into the social conditions of the community, particularly among those people employed at local industrial establishments and have completed their investigations," said Chairman McConway. "They have taken voluminous notes and it will require two or three weeks longer for them to digest what they have observed and to make a complete report.

Plan Has Been Made.

"They have gone far enough," added Chairman McConway, "to plot out the amount of space which will be required for the new institute. They have taken Pratt Institute as their model, as Mr. Carnegie seems to be in favor of the character of work which that institution is doing. The enrollment of the Pratt institute is 4,000—2,500 in the day classes and 1,500 in the night classes.

The same number of students will be provided for at the Carnegie school. The committee has calculated the proper area, according to the best authorities, and parcelled the buildings in a general way. They have made no definite design, except that none of the buildings should be over three stories in height and some only one story high. The system of detached buildings met with their favor because of the hygienic advantages and other reasons.

Little Has Been Done.

"The matter of procuring a site has been on for the past two years. As the city was to furnish the site the committee placed its plans in the hands of the department of public works. The department of public works. That department talked with one-half of the members of council on the subject and I have strong hopes that councils will take the initiative."

Chairman McConway stated that the curriculum of the manual training school provides for day classes, to run for a period of three years, nine months in each year. Applicants for admission to the first year's class not to be under 16 years of age. The day classes are to be instructed in metallurgy of steel manufactures, structural steel design and construction, machine design and construction, applied electricity, glass ceramics and clay working, gas manufacturing and petroleum products.

Night Classes Also.

The night classes will run for two or three years, six months in the year, and three nights a week, covering instruction in mechanical drawing and machine design, architectural drawing and design, bridge and structural steel drawing and design, applied chemistry, applied electricity, steam engineering, practical mechanics, strength of materials and building construction; the beginner must be over 17 years of age.

Technical lectures will be held weekly and will be open to journeymen, journeymen steel and iron workers, moulders and foundrymen, plumbers and steamfitters, electrical workers, steam engineers and pattern makers. Technical and popular lectures will also be given weekly for the benefit of the public, the lectures to be on industrial topics, local industries, science and achievement.

There will also be a school of domestic science and art for women.

University Wants to Be Near.

Chairman McConway stated that the members of the plan and scope committee are also members of the board of trustees of the Western university, and that the two institutions are working together in harmony. He said the Western university trustees wish to locate the university near the Carnegie school, so that it can get some of the students who graduate from the manual training institution. The Western university authorities have no immediate prospects of obtaining a site near the Carnegie school, as the price asked for the Schenley property adjoining the plot selected for the Carnegie school is too high.

Out of 50 Men Arrested, 38 Managed to Make Their Escape.

Charged with trespassing on the lines of the Lake Erie railroad, twelve men were committed to the Allegheny county jail last night by Alderman W. R. Nicholson on the information of Charles Murray of the Lake Erie railroad police force. The men were arrested along the lines of the Lake Erie railroad during the afternoon. Some fifty men were placed under arrest.

Word was sent to the Lake Erie station to have officers and an alderman there to commit the men when they arrived at the station. Only two constables were secured. When the train arrived 38 of the prisoners stepped off the cars and deliberately walked away. Twelve of the men were held in control.

Alderman Nicholson held the hearing in the Lake Erie station and committed the men from there. They were handcuffed and taken to the jail by Constables J. Byers and George Williams.

The Key to Wealth

Is the systematic saving of money and placing it with a reliable bank where it will earn interest. The Pittsburgh Bank for Savings, Smithfield st., opposite postoffice, established 1865, is one of the strongest banks in the country, and pays four per cent interest, compounded twice yearly. 20,000 persons have nearly Twelve million dollars on deposit with this bank, and its banking by mail system is largely availed of by out-of-town residents, because local banks pay little, if any interest at all. This system has been in operation six years, and although the bank has depositors residing in every part of the country, not a dollar has been lost. Better write for booklet 20—tells all about this plan of banking.

SIXTY VICTIMS OF RIVER FIRE

taken off in the yawl. The rest were picked up out of the water.

Help, except from people living near by, did not arrive until 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, and passengers, with only night clothes and without food, suffered terribly.

The steamer Maud Kilgore, Captain Cole, brought the survivors to this place at 5 p. m., and the several societies of the city rendered all assistance in the way of clothing, etc.

LIST OF OFFICERS ON BURNED STEAMBOAT

Vessel Inspected at Cincinnati Just Before Her Departure for the South.

CINCINNATI, O., April 20.—The Pittsburgh's officers consisted of John M. Phillips, commander; Dana Scott, purser; Oliver Phillips of Pittsburgh, clerk; Ben Bridges, Louisville, third clerk; Arch Schriber, Moscow, O., first mate; Tom Whitney, New Albany, Ind., second mate; Harry Doss, Cincinnati, pilot; Al Pritchard, Memphis, pilot; Clate Crawford, Ironton, O., engineer; Harry Closson, Zanesville, second engineer; William Bolinger, Cincinnati, steward; Fred Rentz, Newport, Ky., barkeeper; Harvey Brown, Cincinnati, steersman.

The following are known to have boarded the City of Pittsburgh at Cincinnati: Archie M. Allen of Pittsburgh, Mrs. A. M. Allen, their 10-year-old son, Sylvester Doss, Cincinnati; Joseph Craig of Grand View, Ind., grain merchant; H. Brunen of Cloverport, Ky.; Mrs. Al Pritchard of Memphis, Tenn.; Sarah Pritchard, 11, her daughter; Ella Pritchard, aged 6, her daughter.

Just prior to the boat's departure she underwent her annual inspection by United States Inspectors Dameron and Fearn, and was granted first-class papers.

NAMES OF PASSENGERS ARE NOT OBTAINABLE

Purser's Records Were Destroyed With the City of Pittsburgh. Some from This City.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CINCINNATI, April 20.—When the City of Pittsburgh left Cincinnati last Wednesday night for Memphis she had 31 passengers and a crew of more than 60. The local officers of the packet company say that some of these passengers have since reached their destination and others had been taken aboard during the past three days at points down the river.

Some of the passengers were from Pittsburgh and other up the river points. Even the names of the passengers who started from Cincinnati are not obtainable, as the only register kept was in the purser's office on the steamer.

The Pittsburgh was built at Marietta in 1899 and was valued at $80,000. She was 300 feet long and 80 feet wide and was owned by John M. Phillips and Al Brahm of Pittsburgh, and Dana Scott of Zanesville.

Mrs. Phillips, wife of the commander of the steamer, and her son, remained here this trip. She received a telegram from her husband tonight that he was not seriously hurt during the fire.

FORTUNATE ESCAPE OF LOUISVILLE WOMEN

Twenty Roustabouts and Several Passengers Boarded the Boat at That City.

LOUISVILLE, KY., April 20.—The City of Pittsburgh left Louisville Friday afternoon after taking on three passengers and 20 roustabouts at this city.

A Louisville man, Benjamin Bridges, was third clerg of the steamer. A telegram received here this afternoon says Clerk Bridges and his sister, Miss Margaret Bridges, and Miss Jennie Bissick of Lexington, Ky., the latter two having boarded the boat at Louisville, were saved. A man, whose name is unknown here, also took passage on the Pittsburgh from this city.

DISASTER DESCRIBED BY LUCKY SURVIVORS

One Mother Sees Her Three Children Drown—Pilot Pritchard's Child Lost.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CAIRO, April 20.—Mrs. Mulkey, wife of Judge Mulkey, of Metropolis, Ill., boarded the City of Pittsburgh shortly before the disaster. She gave the following account of her experience:

"I got on the boat at Metropolis, to take passage to Cairo. All of the passengers were asleep when I went aboard, and I went at once to my stateroom and lay down with my clothes on. It must have been an hour or more before I noticed a bright light shining into my stateroom. I immediately got up and opened the door and saw that the front cabin was on fire. At that moment the electric lights went out. I got a life preserver and put it on and managed to grope my way by the light of the flames to a door opposite. It was a barber shop. Then I groped further down to another door, which opened out into the guards. But few passengers were aroused at this time, and I, with others, climbed out over the guards and down the railing hand over hand over the lifeboat, which was below me.

Lifeboat Was Overcrowded.

"I hung suspended by my arms for a while and was caught by a man who was seated in the boat. By this time others crowded into the boat and filled it to overflowing, but as if providentially, the flames reached the ropes that held the lifeboat, and we dropped into the river before others could push their way into the boat.

"We would all have been drowned if others had pushed into the boat. The lifeboat commenced to drift back toward the burning steamer, and we thought that we were to die after all. We had no oars and the men used their hands for oars. There were people in the river all about us on every side.

Shivered in Night Clothes.

"After we had managed to get to the shore fires were lighted and the poor men and women and children, many of them in their night clothing, huddled about the fires. Many of them lost those nearest and dearest to them, and their cries and moans were heartrending.

"Some were burned, but more were badly bruised and cut by coming in contact with the wreckage. People clung to shutters and anything they could find to float on to shore and only a few succeeded. A physician, who with his wife was among the passengers, managed to quiet the sufferings of some by administering morphine, of which he had a small quantity."

Mother Sees Her Children Drown.

H. T. Gardner of Tobinsport, Ind., relates his experience as follows:

"About 5 o'clock I was awakened by the electric bells and the screams of passengers. I put on a life-preserver and my clothes and went out and jumped overboard. I was almost caught under the wheel and saw one man drown who was carried under the boat by the current. I was badly bruised about the limbs, but I am a good swimmer and managed to get ashore."

Mrs. Sherman McCullom with her three children was going to Coruthersville, Mo., to join her husband. She jumped overboard and landed in the yawl, but her three children landed in the water and she saw them sink from sight.

Pilot's Child Drowned.

She is nearly frantic with grief. The body of the youngest of the little ones was recovered opposite Mound City and its remains was identified by the mother.

Another terribly sad circumstance was the loss of one of the children of Pilot Al Pritchard. The little one was tossed from the burning steamer to arms waiting to catch it in a yawl, but its head struck against the side of the boat and it fell into the river and was lost.

One of the surviving members of the crew gave this account:

The Struggle for Life.

"The fire was discovered at 4:05 a. m. in the forward hold. In a few minutes the whole bow was a wreck. The front stairways burned, cutting off any avenue of escape. We alarmed the sleeping passengers, bursting open the doors to awaken them. They ran out without putting on life preservers and were crowded. The officers held them back while the one yawl was loaded with women and children.

"The scene was awful. About 20 or 30 were taken off in the boat and then those in the water were rescued. The water was very cold and the passengers were in their night clothing. Those who were not burned in the boat were drowned, all except those who were able to swim. I was one of those.

Crazed by Fright.

"When we reached shore we were unable to stand and had to be helped out of the water. It seemed as though we were crazed by fright, for we were screaming with fright even after we were safe ashore."

Capt. Phillips says:

"The fire caught in the hold. The night watchman claims to have been in the hold five or 10 minutes before the fire was discovered. The pilot headed the steamer directly into the bank and her sharp bow stuck in the mud. The boat lies quartering with the bank."

Rescued by Skiffs.

At Caledonia, three miles below the scene of the disaster, the flames could be plainly seen and men put out in skiffs to the wreck. They assisted in saving some of the passengers, among these Mrs. S. R. Leach of Bridgeport, Ala., who was terribly burned about the head; Mrs. Fennimore of Arbuckle, W. Va., burned about the hands and face, and Mrs. Fannie McCullum of Leavenworth, Ind., burned about the breast.

Many passengers clung by finger tips to the burning boat, with bodies submerged, until, overcome by fire or water, they sank to death. Wesley Neeley, a fisherman, rescued two from the wheel house, a man and a woman. The latter clung to the boat until her hands were burned.

Old Pilot Died of Shock.

Capt. Doss, who was drowned, was an old river pilot. He was making the trip for pleasure with his son, Pilot Harry Doss, and when his body was found a mile or so below the wreck he had on all his clothing and a life preserver. It is believed that he died from the shock.

A company on a small gasoline launch which happened along served coffee as long as it lasted, and this was all the refugees from the City of Pittsburgh had in the way of nourishment from 7 o'clock last evening until the Kilgore arrived this afternoon.

ONE PITTSBURGH BOY LOST IN THE DISASTER

Nine-Year-Old Son of Archie M. Allen the Only Victim from This City.

Archie M. Allen and wife, whose young son, Ardue M. Allen, is in the list of dead of the City of Pittsburgh, are well-to-do Pittsburghers, who since last fall have been living in a new home in Mr. Vernon street, Belmare place, Homewood. The Allens started on their trip south last Monday night, going over the Panhandle railroad to Cincinnati. There they took the steamer City of Pittsburgh, intending to stop at Memphis, where Mr. Allen was to do some work in the line of his business, that of an expert accountant and auditor.

Mrs. Allen has been in ill health for some time, and the family physician, Dr. H. C. Westervelt, advised her to take the river trip. Mr. Allen was doing accounting work for the owners of the Pittsburgh and his business in Memphis is understood to have been in connection with this. He also required a rest from too constant application to work, and the part rail and water trip was consequently decided on.

When Dr. Westervelt was told last midnight of the appalling accident that the little Allen family met he was greatly shocked. The son, he said, was a bright youth of 9 years.

The Allens have been living in Pittsburgh seven or eight years. They came here from Ohio. Mr. Allen opened an accounting agency at 251 Fourth avenue. For some time the family lived at No. 4 Highland place, moving from there last fall to their own home in Edgerton. Westervelt nor any of the friends of the family who could be found last night, had any information as to the return of the afflicted father and mother.

HIS WORK UNFINISHED.

Victim of Disaster Was Writing History of River Accidents.

LOUISVILLE, KY., April 20.—Captain Wesley Doss, who lost his life in the steamboat disaster, has been at work for some time on a history of notable river disasters.

EVIL FORTUNE FOR BIG BOAT

Cincinnati, Capt. Phillips, Capt. Scott, Mrs. Phillips and several others who were on the boat taking noon luncheon, preparatory to starting on the down trip, were poisoned from eating canned mackerel. A physician was called, but it was found that they were not seriously ill. At all events, Mrs. Phillips and her son Joseph, who has been ill for some time, remained at Cincinnati. Capt. Scott and Capt. Phillips were able to take their boat out as usual.

The burning of the boat thus ends a career which has been most unfortunate to her owners. The steamer is believed to be insured for $30,000 and it is said that she could not be built today for less than $75,000. The City of Pittsburgh was built out of the City of New Orleans, a vessel which ran for years between St. Louis and New Orleans. The latter vessel was taken to Mariotta, where she was wrecked and her machinery placed on the Pittsburgh. Other portions of the vessel were also worked into the Pittsburgh. When the steamer was completed and brought to this city she was more than a week coming, but this was due to her boilers not working properly.

Received Honors from Pittsburgh.

Upon her arrival here the vessel was presented with a handsome silver water service by the Pittsburgh chamber of commerce and the city presented her with Father Pitt's colors. Albert L. Brahm, the well-known butcher in the Diamond market, is the largest single owner of the steamer, holding a one-third interest. Other owners are Capt. Phillips, Capt. Dana Scott, Capt. George Wallace, Charles Beckwith and several others. Wallace and Beckwith are residents of Zanesville.

"There are few better known boatmen than Capt. Phillips. For 25 years he has been engaged in steamboating on the Ohio river. He was commander of the steamer Iron Queen, owned by the Pittsburgh & Cincinnati Packet Line. He was in command of this vessel when she caught fire a number of years ago at Antiquity, O., and burned to the water's edge. The fire broke out in daylight and all escaped except the chambermaid of the boat. Capt. Phillips is a brother-in-law of Capt. James A. Henderson, president of the Pittsburgh & Cincinnati Packet Line. Capt. Phillips was also for a number of years hull inspector of steam vessels for the United States government, with headquarters at Pittsburgh. He resigned this position when he built the steamer City of Pittsburgh and has been in charge of the vessel ever since. Capt. Dana Scott, her chief clerk, is also well known, having boated on the Ohio and Mississippi for years. He was chief clerk of the steamer Lorena, which plies between Pittsburgh and Zanesville, before he identified himself with the City of Pittsburgh.

Well Known Pilot Lost.

Capt. "Wess" Doss, who is reported dead, is a well-known Mississippi river pilot and a resident of Covington, Ky. He has been an officer of the boat most of the present season.

The City of Pittsburgh was 300 feet long and 80 feet wide over her wheel houses. She was by far the fastest steamer that operated out of Cincinnati in the Ohio and Mississippi river trade. Capt. Phillips resides in Breckenridge avenue in the East End, and is a brother of the well-known gardeners on Neville island of the same name.

The boat, it is thought, has a large amount of Pittsburgh freight aboard. The steamer Virginia of the Pittsburgh & Cincinnati Packet Line, which left here one week ago last Saturday, connected with the Pittsburgh at Cincinnati last Tuesday and put her southern reshipping on the Pittsburgh. It is reported that several Pittsburgh passengers were aboard the burned steamer, and if this is true they probably took passage on the Virginia, leaving here at the time stated.

News from Capt. Phillips.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon Capt. Phillips wired to his home at No. 5217 Atlantic avenue the news of the explosion, and that both he and his son Oliver had escaped uninjured. The telegram was apparently written hurriedly and gave no details of the awful disaster. Miss Katherine Phillips, a daughter of Capt. Phillips, had been visiting friends in Center avenue early in the afternoon and had scarcely reached her home when a messenger boy brought a telegram.

"We have not heard any more details," Miss Phillips said last night to a Gazette reporter. "Father wired that an explosion had occurred and that he and Oliver were safe. I hope the passengers have escaped, too. It is dreadful to think of people being burned to death so."

Capt. Phillips likewise wired to several friends about the explosion, but no definite details from any officer of the boat had reached the city at midnight.

James B. Harlow of Breckenridge and Center avenues, who has been heretofore connected with the City of Pittsburgh, said last night that it had always been an ill-favored boat.

"I believe," he said, "that the material make-up of that boat had much to do with it. It was not by any means a new boat when built, as most of the material was taken from another big passenger boat. This is essentially true of the mechanical part. There was scarcely a month in the year when some accident or other did not occur. It cost as much for repairs as would have built a modern steamer."

Four Passengers from Pittsburgh.

Capt. J. A. Henderson of the Pittsburgh and Cincinnati Packet line, which does the booking for the City of Pittsburgh, last night made the following statement: "There were four passengers aboard from this city. Two of them were booked for Hot Springs, the third for Dubuque, and the last for St. Louis. I cannot recall their names.

"It does not seem probable that so many lives could be lost, if, according to our report, the boat was near shore. Even if it were in midstream it could still be headed to the Kentucky or Illinois side with a small loss. There are ample facilities on these large passenger boats for such a crisis. The boat carried about 70 employes. We have nothing to do with it other than the booking. I hope later reports will bring more favorable news. To men accustomed to river life it does seem strange that so many lives have been lost as reported."

TWO WOMEN BITTEN BY MAD DOG IN OHIO

Rabid Animal Attacks Many Church-Goers, But Is Finally Killed.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ZANESVILLE, O., April 20.—A mad dog ran the entire length of this city and five miles into the country today before being killed. In this city it bit Mrs. Julia Knight, wife of a former county auditor, on her way to church, and attacked many other churchgoers, tearing their clothing. Half a dozen policemen gave chase with clubs and revolvers.

At Meadow Farm church, five miles west, the dog attacked Mrs. Thomas George just as she was entering the sanctuary. She struggled with the animal, but it knocked her down and sank its teeth deep in her cheek and throat. Her screams brought the congregation to her assistance.

A messenger was sent here for physicians, while many men, with the minister at their head, organized a systematic hunt for the dog, which was shot to death by Carl Boggs, a teacher in the Sunday school.

AN HONORED GUEST.

President of the Ladies of the G. A. R. Visited Hawkins Home.

The ladies of the G. A. R. home at Hawkins station yesterday was the scene of a gathering of distinguished women in the circles of the ladies of the G. A. R. Mrs. Emma Wall of Topeka, Kan., national president of the society, who had been visiting Washington, D. C., was on her journey home when she stopped off at Pittsburgh Saturday.

She attended the gathering at Hawkins yesterday, and invitations had been sent out to all the prominent local members to attend. Mrs. Wall, accompanied by Mrs. Marie Denniston of Topeka, left for their home after supper last night. Among the party at Hawkins was Mrs. Esther Collingwood, president of the home; Mrs. Kate Lewis, senior vice president; Mrs. Susan Sloan of Allegheny, junior vice president; Mrs. Mary McGuire, manager; Mrs. Rachel Durand of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Carrie F. Sherriff of Allegheny, and Mrs. Ella Jones of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Wall was very much pleased with the Hawkins home and said that on arriving at Topeka, she would immediately stir up the women of her town in an effort to erect one as fine. Mrs. Wall delivered an address to the inmates of the home yesterday morning.

Drank Paris Green.

Mrs. Rachel Findley, aged 32, of No. 3010 Smallman street, yesterday afternoon drank a quantity of Paris green and has since been in a critical condition. Shortly after she drank it Drs. J. J. Greer and F. V. Martin of No. 2322 Penn avenue were called in and by the quick use of a stomach pump succeeded in relieving her condition to a great extent, and at late hour last night her chances for recovery were considered good by the physicians. Her husband stated that his wife has been indisposed for a week and that her sickness was responsible for her drinking the poison.

REDMOND MADE A STIRRING PLEA FOR HOME RULE

The Irish Leader Greeted by a Big Crowd at the Avenue Theater.

HE RECEIVED AN OVATION

At the Close of the Meeting of the United Irish League a Large Collection Was Taken and All Present Joined in Cheer for Boers.

It is doubtful if in any part of the country the Hon. William H. K. Redmond, member of the English parliament from County Clare, Ireland, and one of the delegates to the United Irish league, has received a more hearty reception than was tendered him last evening at the Avenue theater. It would be impossible to exaggerate the enthusiasm which characterized the immense meeting, and especially Mr. Redmond's address.

Representative men in all walks of life occupied seats on the stage, among whom were Judge Josiah Cohen, the Hon. Morrison Foster, Andrew Fulton, W. J. Friday, the Rev. Father Carroll of St. Agnes' Roman Catholic church, Allegheny; P. J. Loughrey, Joseph E. Howley, L. P. Horan, P. Stanton, M. J. Connelly, John

EDWARD F. DUFFY,
President of the Central Branch of Western Pennsylvania of the United Irish League of America.

Welsh, Martin Howley, P. M. Fitzgerald, P. M. O'Donnell and many others, with the officers of the Central Branch of Western Pennsylvania of the United Irish League of America.

The House Was Crowded.

Representatives were present from all the branches in the western part of the state. The boxes were occupied by men prominent in business affairs and by many ladies, while every available space in the main body of the house was taken, ladies having a large representation. The stage was decorated with the American flag and the green and gold banner of the Braddock lodge of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. The Second brigade band, previous to the opening of the meeting and between the addresses, played Irish airs and contributed not a little to the enthusiasm.

Shortly after 8 o'clock J. O'Connor Campbell, secretary of the Central branch, called the assemblage to order and stated that the object of the meeting was for the purpose of showing an expression of feeling for the Irish cause, and introduced Edward F. Duffy, the president, who delivered a short address.

Mr. Duffy declared that the time had arrived for all Irish-Americans to give some expression of sympathy for suffering Ireland, now in a struggle for home government for which she has been fighting for 100 years.

After reading a telegram to Mr. Redmond from the meeting being held in Toledo, he introduced the distinguished guest of the evening, who received an ovation. Mr. Redmond advanced to speak and for more than an hour swayed his audience with an address full of pathos, satire and eloquence. Those who have met his brother, the Hon. John Redmond, who was here recently, were struck with the close resemblance. He is a forceful, impressive speaker, with just enough of the Celtic accent to endear him at once to every Irishman in the audience.

Mr. Redmond's Address.

After thanking the audience for the welcome extended him, Mr. Redmond went on to say, in part:

This meeting shows me that the spirit of the Irish people of Pittsburgh is as high as ever it was and that the confidence which the Irish people have placed in their kindred of this city has not been misplaced.

I am delighted with this demonstration for two reasons. In the first place because it will give courage and hope to our people at home in the struggle which they are making for freedom; and, in the second, this great gathering will bring disappointment to those enemies of Ireland who predicted that the interest of Irish-Americans in the national cause has declined.

The Irish people today are, politically speaking, more united than perhaps they have ever been before. The feuds and factions of the past have been forgotten, and upon the platform of the United Irish league all the leaders of the Parnellite and anti-Parnellite parties stand absolutely united. In the house of commons and at home in Ireland the Irish people and their national representatives are today working with the utmost harmony; and I am desired by my colleagues to express the hope that as Ireland is now united politically the Irish in America may follow their example and give the same whole-hearted assistance to the old country which was unstintingly accorded in the days when Charles Stewart Parnell led the Irish nation.

Hatred of Britain Strong.

I declare that the national spirit of Ireland was never higher than today. The detestation of the people for British rule is probably stronger than ever it was, and the resolves of the people to achieve the freedom of Ireland is more determined than ever. At the end of a hundred years of British rule the national feeling of Ireland is as bright as it was in the days of the rebellion of '98.

The union of the Irish race at home today and the continuance of the spirit of high patriotism, which animates the people, is unquestionably due to the work of the present Irish national organization, the United Irish league, which is, in all respects, a worthy successor to the landlord movement established with so much success by Davitt and Parnell nearly a quarter of a century ago.

I am aware that there are those who believe that no by constant agitation can be achieved the freedom of Ireland. I can only say that for the last 20 years very many substantial reforms have been won by agitation for the Irish people; and we are convinced that the maintenance of the strong combined movement of Ireland, together with independent action in the British parliament, will, in the future, achieve many measures calculated to improve the lives of the people and to strengthen their demand for self government.

Already the United Irish league has achieved many good results. Upon the land question it has welded into one body the Catholics of the south and the Protestants of the north, with the result that there is an immediate prospect of the final abolition of landlordism and of handing of the things of the soil the owners thereof. Our movement, from this point alone, would be well worth the support by all lovers of Ireland; but our movement is not bound by the land question. The first item of our program is the restoration of our national parliament. Every action of the Irish members in parliament and in Ireland is with a view to promoting that end.

I appeal with confidence, not alone to the Irish in America, but to the whole American people, for sympathy and support. The cause of Ireland is the most ancient and honorable in the world. There is nothing connected with the movement of which any of its friends need be ashamed. We have the support not alone of the masses of the people, but we have also the good wishes of such patriotic and honorable ecclesiastics as the Archbishop of Dublin and the archbishop of Cashel.

A Final Appeal.

We all love Ireland and desire to see her free, whatever our particular methods of action may be. Therefore, in the name of our race, in the name of Ireland and the centuries of suffering and persecution through which she has gone, I appeal for your support to be given in such a way that when next month I return to Ireland I may be able to tell friend and foe alike that in our struggle against the tremendous power of the British empire Ireland can count upon the mutual support of her scattered children who have achieved freedom and prosperity under the protection of the American flag.

Mr. Redmond was frequently interrupted by hearty applause, his references to the various Irish leaders, Charles Stuart Parnell, Michael Davitt and others and to the oppression of the Boers in South Africa calling forth the most enthusiastic demonstrations. At the conclusion of his address President Duffy introduced the Rev. Father Joseph Toner of the East End, whom he said was born in Pittsburgh, but who as a young man had gone to Ireland and had spent many years assisting Charles Stuart Parnell in organizing the Irish Land league.

Collection Taken Up.

The Rev. Father John Price of the South Side was the next speaker and while he was speaking a collection was taken up which resulted in securing a great many members and a considerable sum of money to be sent direct to the treasurer of the league in Ireland. Father Price made a stirring appeal for the Irish cause and was followed by Joseph E. Howley and the Hon. Morrison Foster, after which the meeting adjourned, when Mr. Redmond proposed a cheer for Paul Kruger and the Boer republic, which was given with a "tiger."

Mr. Redmond, accompanied by his wife, arrived from the west at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. They were met at the Union station by the Rev. Father Joseph Toner, Edward F. Duffy, P. M. O'Donnell, P. Mul-kerrin, P. G. Kelly and other members of the reception committee, and were escorted to the Hotel Duquesne. After breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Redmond attended services at the cathedral and after luncheon they received visitors until 5 o'clock. At 6 o'clock they dined with James Phelan and family of Oakland, who are friends of long standing.

"This is not my first visit to Pittsburgh," said Mr. Redmond yesterday afternoon. "I was here about 20 years ago, and I have been in this country five or six times. The first visit I made to the United States was fully thirty years ago when I came in company with Michael Davitt, sent by Charles Stewart Parnell. I came over this time for a two months' visit, but already it is lengthening into three, and I expect to return shortly, leaving my colleague, the Hon. Joseph Devlin to keep the Irish question before the friends of Ireland in this country."

HAMILTON'S

The Schumann Piano

THE sympathetic tone quality of the Schumann has won for this instrument a place among the very first pianos. It has endeared the Schumann to all lovers of refined music.

Taking into consideration the moderate price of the Schumann, and the fact of its really excellent structure, no one need be surprised that so many families compare all other pianos with the Schumann. It serves as a paragon of excellence in hundreds of homes.

Many pianos costing considerable more have nothing of the charming individuality of the Schumann.

The Home Piano

Our reason for advertising the Chauncey so often as a home piano is because of its power to please all classes of music lovers. Every day we see evidences of the Chauncey's hold upon the affections of the people.

Even the little children chatter about the pleasure afforded by the Chauncey piano in the home—and everyone must admit that this is a strong endorsement.

The Chauncey costs only a modest price, but it's a thoroughly good and sweet-toned piano, which is all the more desirable because of the way it withstands hard usage.

We use a Chauncey continually in our Pianola Department.

WIFE FEARFUL LOST HUSBAND IS MURDERED

Harry Sheets of West Brownsville Has Been Missing for a Week.

LAST SEEN ON BIRTHDAY

Took Some Money to Pay the Month's Gas Bill, Waved Good-by to Wife and Little Ones and Did Not Return.

The Pittsburgh police are investigating the case that may add one more to the already long list of Western Pennsylvania crimes. Harry Sheets of West Brownsville is missing. Neither his wife nor any of his friends has seen or heard from him since a week ago today, when he left his pretty little home, about a mile from Brownsville, waved good-bye to his wife and five little children and started down the road toward town.

Sheets was on the night turn at the glass factory. Monday, April 14, was his birthday, and he decided to spend all of the day at home. In the morning he took one of his daughters to a dentist in Brownsville, and returned with the little girl in time for the monday meal.

Talked of Their Children.

At the table he told his wife what the dentist had said, spoke of the expense of the work and added that he would prefer to have the work done properly, even if it did cost more. No word carried with it even an intimation that he was thinking of leaving his home.

After dinner Sheets went to bed and was asleep until supper time. Then he told his wife that he would go down street and pay the monthly gas bill. He took some money from the family purse, waved good-bye to his wife and little ones and was gone. Since that last glimpse of her husband as he started for the gas office she has been unable to find any trace of him.

No Reason For Absence.

When seen by a Gazette reporter in her home yesterday the lonely woman could think of no reason for the absence of her husband. They had had no trouble. On the contrary, they had always been happy together in their home and their children.

Whether Sheets was murdered on his way to town for the money that he had with him, or whether he deliberately left his home to try life in some other neighborhood, is still a mystery, although there are many who believe that he is the victim of foul play.

Since his disappearance a week ago Mrs. Sheets has done everything in her power to locate her husband.

Search Begun at Once.

The day following his disappearance she came to Pittsburgh in search of her missing husband and reported the matter to the police authorities, giving them a full description.

Wednesday she went to Morgantown, W. Va., as she had heard of his being there. She found no traces of him and has since then not known where to turn. Sheets took all the money there was about the house when he left, leaving only his pay in the glass factory, amounting to some $57.

Mrs. Sheets says that she cannot imagine any reason for his going away. She says they never quarreled, that her husband was always kind to her and to the children, and that he had a good place in the glass factory and made good wages.

Hope in the Union.

She has some hopes of tracing him through his trade union, if he is still alive. She knows that if he wants to work at glass blowing again he must produce his union card, and if he has none with him, must send for it. If he changes his name he cannot get a card.

Mrs. Sheets has interested the local union at West Brownsville in the case and hopes before long to get some tidings of her missing spouse. In the meantime she has offered $25 reward for knowledge of his whereabouts. She says she will have to take in washing or something similar to support her children, who are all too young to work.

Mrs. Sheets communicated with the Gazette in connection with her other efforts to locate her husband. She says he wore gray clothes and a blue shirt when he left home. He is sandy complexioned, with a red moustache, and has a wart on his right hand.

NO NEW DEVELOPMENTS.

Situation in Linemen's Strike About the Same—Wiremen Likely to Join.

The strike of Pittsburgh linemen developed little of importance yesterday. The strike committee met at headquarters and the leaders declared that no ground is being lost, except for the limited number of non-union men working for the Western Union Telegraph Company. It was reported that some of the old employes of the Bell telephone interest had been called to headquarters and offered the advanced wage, which was to rule without recognition of the union.

The men refused to consider anything that was not settled by the organization and it is said that no member of the organization has deserted during the strike, now nearly three weeks old. An unofficial report was received that the Bell interests has granted the demand of the Chicago strikers, and this leads the Pittsburgh men to hope for something here soon. No further conferences to compromise the issue are scheduled.

There is a growing likelihood that the wiremen, organized as a separate local of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the same general organization as that of the linemen and telephone workers, now on strike, may join the strike issue on May 1, although there remains little at issue on wages between the wiremen and their employers. Business Agent J. F. Zimmer of the wiremen said last night that in the last conference with the associated employers, there was a partial understanding that the advanced wage rate of 30 cents an hour would be granted, but the employers proposed that the scale be entered by their association as a whole, and not by the individual members. The craftsmen, of whom there are about 1,200 organized, voted this down and have submitted a written statement to the employers that they would stand only for the wage scale as presented. No arrangement has been made for another conference before May 1.

To Followed Original Plan.

It was reported last night that the Crucible Steel Company interests had decided to double the great furnace and steel plants now nearing completion at the new town of Clairton. President C. L. Hildreth said that there is absolutely no foundation for the report; that the Clairton plants are simply to be completed according to the original plans, which will give the Crucible company practically the entire supply of raw material from the ore up. The Clairton plants include three 400-ton blast furnaces and an extensive open-hearth steel works to convert this.

THIRD CHANGE IN FOUR MONTHS

A NEW CHIEF ENGINEER FOR THE PRESSED STEEL CAR CO.

Chas. A. Lindstrom, Formerly With the Chicago and Alton Railroad, Will Relieve F. H. Rapley as Head of the Department This Week.

Charles A. Lindstrom, formerly chief engineer of the Chicago & Alton railroad, becomes chief engineer of the Pressed Steel Car Company this week. This is the third change in this department of the big company since John M. Hansen left to organize his own company for steel and wooden car manufacture. George H. Goodell, formerly mechanical engineer of the Northern Pacific railroad, who had been associated with Mr. Hansen, during the later period of his connection with the Pressed Steel Car Company, was first made chief engineer, but his term of office was short. Then F. H. Rapley, resident engineer of the Transportation Development Company, of London, Eng., which handles the car company's foreign trade, was brought here and as general manager of engineering, took charge of the department, until the services of the Chicago & Alton engineer were secured.

Mr. Rapley will probably leave to resume his London business on Wednesday, when Mr. Lindstrom will take charge. Mr. Lindstrom has been successful in the engineering department of the Chicago & Alton. He came here a few days ago to prepare to take charge of his new office.

G. E. Macklin, the general manager of the Pressed Steel Car Company, is expected to resume his office tomorrow. He has been at Colorado Springs, Col., for nearly a year and his health is said to be much improved.

Regardless of the many important changes among general officials in the Pressed Steel Car Company, representatives of the company say that nothing has been lost in its operations and that a still higher production rate, which was being gradually reached when the shakeup in the organization occurred, has been attained.

For the last seven weeks, an officer of the company said yesterday, the output of the Allegheny works alone has shown an average of 55 cars daily. This was in the construction of 50-ton capacity steel hopper cars, made for the Pennsylvania railroad. While this output has been reached before, and maintained for several days at a time, it has never been carried for so long a period on cars of this capacity. The company has orders for many months ahead.

SUNSHINE CALLED MANY TO THE PARKS

Both Highland and Schenley Were Thronged With People Yesterday—Music Hall Filled.

The bright sunshine and mild spring weather yesterday drew large crowds to the parks of both cities. The driveways were lined with handsomely appointed turnouts and the Easter hat was to be seen in all its glories of feathers and bright flowers. Many of the smaller trees are bursting their buds and if the weather continues mild they will be in leaf next Sunday. As usual the Phipps conservatory was the Mecca for the visitors. The bloom is still rich and the display is almost as good as it was two weeks ago.

Extensive improvements are being made in Highland park and more work is now under way than at any time in the history of the park. The unsightly pond below and to the east of the zoo is being filled up and when finished a handsome new music pavilion will be built there.

During the past week a large number of trees and shrubs have been planted under the direction of Superintendent Falconer and much sodding has been done. Many roses have been set out and the slopes covered here and there with flower beds.

There are too many lions at the zoo and Superintendent Tretow will leave for New York tonight to try to trade two of the young lions for a pair of cassowaries. It is probable that some other animals or rare birds may be obtained later. The two birds that Superintendent Tretow expects to get are found in Australia and the Papuan islands. They are somewhat similar to the ostrich, but their plumage is loosely webbed and forms a hair-like covering.

Many of the visitors returned from Highland park to Schenley in time to take in the free organ recital at the Music hall, but many were turned away because the hall was filled early to its full capacity.

The Phipps conservatory in Allegheny park had many visitors yesterday. During the week the park has been rolled and now presents a pleasing appearance. The Victoria Regia, the largest species of water lilies, is now 12 inches in diameter and by August it will have a spread of over eight feet. This plant was bought when the conservatory was constructed, 15 years ago. It was then less than three inches in diameter. During the past week Superintendent Hamilton started over 5,000 chrysanthumums for the fall show.

DIED OF HYDROPHOBIA.

William Clarke of Lower Mifflin Township Was Bitten By His Pet Bull Dog.

After suffering intense agony for nearly a week William Clarke, aged 44 years, of Lower Mifflin township, died at his home in Green Springs early yesterday morning of hydrophobia, the result of having been bitten nine times on his right hand by his pet bull dog "Dewey."

The dog became ill about four weeks ago and it was while doctoring the animal that Clarke was bitten. He immediately had the wounds cauterized. The broken flesh healed and the matter was almost forgotten by Clarke.

Clarke, while in the office of a Pittsburgh physician last Monday, was seized with a violent spasm, but recovered partially and he and his wife boarded a Monongahela traction car for their home. While crossing the Homestead bridge over the Monongahela river Clarke had a second spasm. This is said to have been brought on by the sight of the water in the river. Since Monday Clarke constantly grew worse. Shortly before his death yesterday morning he suffered an unusual violent attack from which he never recovered.

SHOT AT A WEDDING.

Too Much Good Cheer Ended in Trouble at an Austrian Celebration.

Another Austrian wedding, where a surfeit of happiness ended in sorrow, occurred Saturday night at the home of Michael Lockner in Plum alley, between Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth streets. The happiness, aided and abetted by an unlimited supply of liquid refreshments, continued unmarred until the small hours of yesterday. Then the sorrow began when Peter Stocacha was shot in the side with a 38-caliber bullet by George Bolcowicz and taken to the West Penn hospital.

Stocacha and Bolcomicz were the last remaining guests. The latter decided that his thirst was still vigorous and went into the cellar to fill a bottle with beer. His nerves were not in a normal condition and, hearing a step in the alley, he prepared to defend himself in time. He fired through the window at random and was rewarded by hearing a scream of pain from the unfortunate Austrian outside.

The wounded man limped back into the house and stirred up shrile wild excitement, during which Bolcowicz disappeared. The patrol wagon was summoned and Stocacha was taken to the West Penn hospital where the surgeons say his wound is not serious. His assailant is still missing.

Wreck Near New Castle--Murder Suspects in Jail

ONE MAN IS KILLED AND TWO HURT IN WRECK

PASSENGERS UNINJURED

A Fast Train Crashed Into Work Train Near New Castle.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW CASTLE, PA., April 20.—An accident resulted shortly after 10 o'clock this morning, when westbound Pennsylvania passenger train No. 219 crashed into a work train near Covert's station, two miles west of this city. One man is dead and two are injured as a result.

The Dead.

W. W. IRWIN, passenger engineer, of Mahoningtown.

Injured.

FIREMAN JOHN STEVENSON of this city; broken ankle and severe bruises.

EDWARD WILLIAMS; workrain employe; severely bruised.

None of the passengers were injured, but their journey was delayed several hours until the wreckage could be cleared away. The cause of the accident is not yet known and will not be until the official investigation is made. The work train was standing just beyond a curve and was not seen until the fast passenger train swung around, too late to avoid the crash.

Engineer Irwin remained at his post and met death under his engine, which was overturned upon him in the ditch beside the rocks. Stevenson saw the work train in time to dump and landed on a pile of cinders, from which he was thrown into the water below.

The baggage coach of the passenger train was badly wrecked, plowing over the tender and upon the locomotive, while the work train was reduced to debris. The immunity of the passengers from injury is only accounted for by the fact that the work train was light and did not offer great resistence, being pushed far along the track.

Coroner E. C. Porter this afternoon empaneled a jury and will hold an inquest upon the death of Engineer Irwin. He leaves a widow and family, and one of his daughters is critically ill from typhoid fever.

MINERS MAY STRIKE.

West Virginia Coal Workers Making Effort For a Conference With Operators.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., April 20.—The United Mine Workers of West Virginia, whose repeated efforts to bring about a conference between themselves and the coal operators of the state have been unsuccessful, will make a final effort to secure the latter's attendance at a meeting called for the present week in this city.

If no recognition or satisfaction shall be obtained at this meeting it is said a general strike will be the result among the thousands of mine workers along the Chesapeake & Ohio and Norfolk & Western and the Baltimore & Ohio railroads.

SACRIFICED HIS OWN LIFE.

Aged Man Killed While Rescuing Grandson From Train.

WHEELING, W. VA., April 20.—(Special.)—In his efforts to save his grandson from being crushed to death beneath the wheels of the Ohio River "flyer" yesterday, below this city, James Anderson was himself ground to pieces.

The two were engaged in gathering driftwood, when Anderson, who was 70 years of age, noticed that the boy was on the track in danger. He rushed across in time to push the boy out of harm's way, but did not succeed in escaping himself. His body was taken to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Castilow, near McMechen.

To Manufacture a Stoker.

FRANKLIN, PA., April 20.—(Special.)—The Mechanical Locomotive Stoker Company is being organized here for the manufacture of a patented mechanical stoker. The company will have a capital of $1,000,000. The officers will be: Gen. Charles Miller, chairman of the board; Maj. Charles A. Miller, president; Samuel J. Meyler, vice president; George C. Miller, secretary, and O. D. Bleakley, treasurer.

Class Performers Chosen.

GROVE CITY, PA., April 20.—(Special.)—The following class day performers have been elected by the senior class of Grove City college: Artist, T. S. Stuart; song, S. A. Mahle and M. Sheakley; poet, William Fresh; prophet, R. C. Dean; pessimist, N. E. Heeter; optimist, Mary Ritts; orator, H. C. Lytle; declaimer, W. M. Jones; historian, B. N. Bottenham; valedictorian, Lyda Elliott.

STATE AND NEIGHBORHOOD.

SHARON, PA.—Mrs. M. O'Neil, aged 65 years, was badly burned yesterday by the explosion of a lamp.

SHARON, PA.—Wallis & Carley, contractors, are erecting three new business blocks on South Dock street at a cost of $50,000.

CONNELLSVILLE, PA.—The big South Connellsville plant of the Baldwin Automobile Manufacturing Company has been sold to J. C. Kurtz of this place.

BELLAIRE, O.—The Troll, Glencoe, Meahan and McGregor coal mining properties, west of this city, have been consolidated, and the purchasers are said to be Bernine Brothers of Western Pennsylvania.

SHARON, PA.—Policeman William J. Hanlon of South Sharon is at the Buhl hospital in a serious condition, as the result of a kick received while arresting William J. Jenkins, who is charged with the assault.

CONNELLSVILLE, PA.—Mrs. Lucinda Coles, a negress, died at her home at Moyer, near here, yesterday, aged 104 years. Her age is certain, her birth being recorded in a family Bible, purchased many years ago. She was a slave.

HUSBAND AND WIFE LAID IN ONE GRAVE

Hundreds of People Attend Unusual Funeral Near Greensburg.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

GREENSBURG, PA., April 20.—The burial of husband and wife in one grave this afternoon attracted the greatest interest from many hundreds of people who gathered at the little country graveyard at Harrold church. It was the last rites over the remains of George P. Miller and his wife, Sophia Miller, who died on Friday. The husband was 76 years of age and his wife about the same age.

Mrs. Miller died suddenly while kneeling at the bedside of her aged husband, whose term of life she knew was rapidly closing. Ten hours later her husband died, unconscious of the fact that she had preceded him.

They were among the best-known citizens of this town, noted for their charity and hospitality. The couple had many children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. The funeral this afternoon was the largest witnessed here for a long time.

SHOOTING A MYSTERY.

Bank Watchman Found Dead at Wilkesbarre Under Peculiar Circumstances.

WILKESBARRE, PA., April 20.—(Special.)—Oliver Purvis, a watchman at the First National bank, was shot in the pay office of the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Company over the bank this evening. Whether he committed suicide or was killed by a man who had entered the office is not certain.

The street outside was crowded at the time with Sunday evening strollers, and the shot was plainly heard. A moment afterward a young man appeared at the door of the building and in a great hurry sprang down the steps and was lost in the crowd.

The police were informed and they found the body of Purvis lying on the floor of the pay office and the revolver by his side. He had been shot through the mouth and the bullet had lodged in the back of the brain. The revolver belonged to the company and had been taken from an open drawer in which were several others. There is a theory that someone was in the office, and that as Purvis entered the shot was fired. Nothing about the room was disturbed.

Searched for Missing Man.

ALTOONA, PA., April 20.—(Special.)—A large posse of citizens of this city under the leadership of Humane Officer H. A. McGraw spent today scouring the Brush mountains in a vain attempt to find Jacob Schmidthuber, an aged German, who disappeared from his home one month ago after the death of his wife. His son Jacob was given a hearing Saturday before a local magistrate, charged with cruelty to his father, but was discharged.

Smallpox in New Kensington.

NEW KENSINGTON, PA., April 20.—(Special.)—Another case of smallpox was discovered here this morning, the victim being Mrs. G. C. White, who resides on Fifth avenue, in the business section of the town. The board of health has quarantined the house and part of the street.

NEIGHBORS AFRAID OF SECOND ACCIDENT

Residents of Sterrett Township Oppose Replacing of Water Main That Overwhelmed a Family.

Residents of Sterrett township, in the vicinity of the main of the Pennsylvania Water Company, which burst Saturday, demolishing the home of William Enghlehardt, drowning one daughter and seriously injuring the father and another child, are up in arms.

They say that the main has burst several times at points in that vicinity, and that many lives are threatened by its existence in its present location. A petition was started yesterday by the citizens of the neighborhood demanding that it be removed, or else secured from all danger of a break. The neighbors of the Enghlehardt family assert that the broken main cannot be replaced in its present location and the light will be carried into the courts if necessary.

Several thousand people visited the ruined home yesterday. All day people thronged about the house. No one was admitted inside the premises and a special watchman was placed there to watch the effects of the family.

William Enghlehardt and his daughter Lillian are slowly recovering from the effects of their terrible experience. During the day Enghlehardt showed signs of general improvement. His daughter Lillian will recover, but the sight of her left eye is destroyed.

Late Saturday night Lillian was removed from the house of Officer Charles Mackey to the home of John Lloyd, where her father and mother are staying. Lizzie Enghlehardt, the daughter that was saved through the efforts of her mother, has also been taken to the Lloyd home.

Wanderer Was Insane.

Barbara Minn, a demented woman about 60 years of age, was found sitting in a doorway on Federal street, Allegheny, about 10:30 o'clock last night by some passersby, who took her to Central station. She wandered away from her home on Allequippa street, Pittsburgh, yesterday morning, and yesterday afternoon she was picked up in Millvale by the police there, who sent her home on a street car. Relatives were looking for her at Allegheny police station but a short time before she was found last night. She has wandered away from home several times recently and will probably be sent to an asylum today. She was placed in the care of the matron at Allegheny Central station last night and her relatives notified.

FOUR MEN ARRESTED ON SUSPICION OF MURDER

IN JAIL AT GREENSBURG

Negroes Charged With the Killing of Alexander McNaught.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

GREENSBURG, PA., April 20.—Four more negroes suspected of the Hempfield slope murder were arrested tonight at Cokeville, near Blairsville, and brought to prison here. They are Edgar and John Floyd, who claim they are from Johnstown, and John Moses and James White, who say they are from Apollo.

Two large revolvers and two knives were found on the Floyd brothers. They were arrested by Detective Dewalt and Constable Bennett Gasper. It is claimed it can be shown that the Floyd brothers had been working at Jamison until a few days ago, and they were looked upon as dangerous negroes. They all positively deny participating in the killing of Alexander McNaught.

White has been in prison before, but it is not believed he was implicated in the killing. It is claimed by Railroad Detective Gilleland that White and Moses were in the Apollo lockup on Friday night. The Cokeville officers say the Floyds had a gold watch when arrested, presumably the one taken from McQuillis, but it has disappeared.

Another problem that is puzzling the detectives is the statement made by relatives of the dead boy that he had been robbed of money and rings after he was killed. The highwaymen disappeared after firing the fatal bullet and they are not charged with that robbery.

UNIONTOWN, PA., April 20.—(Special.)—George Washington, colored, was arrested at Kyle works today by the burgess and police of Fairchance as one of the three negroes who murdered and robbed Alfred J. Jones at Gans last Saturday night. He has a scar on his face and otherwise answers the description of one of the men who were seen by the women who were in the house with Jones.

KENT, O., April 20.—(Special.)—Wesley Bancroft of Garrettsville was lodged in the county jail last midnight. He is charged with the murder of Chauncey Hickox, a venerable Garrettsville farmer who was waylaid in his sugar camp, shot in the back of the head and buried in leaves. His faithful dog witnessed the crime, fought the assassin and led the searching party to the body. Bancroft is 60 years of age.

ATTACKED BY A DEER.

New Keeper in Zoo Nearly Killed Before Aid Arrives.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., April 20.—(Special.)—James McHugh, a new keeper at the zoo, was attacked today by a deer and nearly killed before assistance arrived. When McHugh arrived this morning Keeper Geiger started him to work in the animal pens. Geiger warned him when he came to the one occupied by the Sambur deer to be careful and keep a close watch on the mother.

McHugh had been working in the deer pen but a few minutes, all the while keeping the mother in sight, when she suddenly attacked him. In the first charge McHugh was knocked down. When he started to rise the deer plunged at him, using her front feet as well as her head. McHugh called for help. Keeper Geiger rushed to his assistance and managed to beat off the animal. McHugh was in a semi-conscious condition when taken from the pen.

THE CAT CAME BACK.

Animal Found Its Way From New Castle to Franklin.

FRANKLIN, PA., April 20.—(Special.)—When Brakemen Guntrey of Stoneboro made his run with his train to New Castle over the Pennsylvania railroad Friday, he carried with him two cats, a black and a gray. In the New Castle yard he deserted the animals with the hope that he would never see them again.

The following day the black cat turned up at the home again, and he has decided to let it stay. The cat traveled about 40 miles on its return trip and must have walked the entire distance. The gray cat is still missing.

BROWN PLANNING THE DOWNFALL OF VON BONNHORST

Has a Scheme to Bar Out Candidates, Who Have Served Two Terms.

TO TAKE THREE OFF SLATE

The Plan Would Knock Out Candidacies of County Recorder, Commissioner J. C. Mercer and Controller W. E. Thompson.

There is talk in old organization circles of attempting to sidetrack all county officials who have served two terms. Recorder J. O. Brown is said to be back of it, and is figuring on the adoption of the Crawford county system of nominating and a delay in the primaries as means of accomplishing this end. The scheme has the appearance of an endeavor to get rid of a rival county recorder, George M. von Bonnhorst, who is seeking a fifth term.

Were this two-term rule to be put in force now, it would take Recorder George M. von Bonnhorst, County Commissioner J. Carson Mercer and Controller W. E. Thompson off the machine slate. Register Fred W. Edwards and Commissioner W. W. Murray have not had two full terms, the former filling the balance of time of John Gripp, and the latter that of James Weir. Archibald Mackrell, candidate for sheriff, and George W. Foster, slated for treasurer, have never held elective county offices.

Opinions Are Divergent.

There are machine men who think that it would be easier to elect a county ticket this fall if the two-terners were weeded out. Friends of the men who would suffer say that a rule of this kind should not be adopted for the election this year, as Messrs. Von Bonnhorst, Mercer and Thompson have made their fight. They say that it should apply in the future. In this case it would sidetrack Prothonotary A. J. McNulty, District Attorney John C. Haymaker and Coroner Jesse McGeary. County Chairman Robertson says that if officials were held down to two terms there would be less strife in the party. He is in favor of the rule being adopted at the present time.

Recorder George von Bonnhorst is said to be in dread of some action of this kind. Machine men say that he shivers at the suggestion of delaying the primaries for this reason.

"Bonny" Wants Fifth Term.

The county recorder is asking the party to elect him for a fifth term. There are men on the slate with him who feel that Von Bonnhorst may be the load that will carry them all to defeat.

There is anything but harmony in the old organization just at present. J. O. Brown is objecting to the court house crowd holding meetings and refusing to tell him what was done. They reply that when he takes them into his confidence the courtesy will be returned.

Brown is said to be anxious to get Von Bonnhorst out of the field, as he does not want any rival for the leadership. As a means of accomplishing this end, he may try to have the Crawford county system of nominating adopted. There are indications that he is sounding county committeemen on the subject. His friends say that, with a direct vote, Von Bonnhorst would have more trouble securing a nomination than he would by the delegate plan. If the Crawford system is adopted it will be necessary to delay the primaries and Brown is alleged to favor this proposition.

Clarence Burleigh, who is known to be on friendly terms with Brown, says that he favors the Crawford county system and believes that it is the only fair method of making nominations. This, coming from Mr. Burleigh, is an indication that there is a "hen on" in the Brown camp.

Brown Wants Another Term.

Brown is still hopeful that he can shape things so that he will get the machine nomination for city recorder. He thinks that he can do this, by keeping his own counsel and playing all ends of the string. He hopes that something will happen in the gubernatorial fight which will not necessitate him showing his hand. There will be flirtation with Stone and Quay, and a silent prayer for a condition that will allow him to remain the friend of both. This "gum shoe" policy is rapidly diverging him from some of the men whom he will have to have, if he hopes to secure the machine nomination for recorder. There are men on the organization county slate who will knife Brown, five minutes after they are sure that they are elected. This is not rumor. Every day machine men are begging William Flinn to return to his old place, managing director. He refuses to listen to the appeals, saying that the pleasures of private life are too inviting to be surrendered for the strenuous existence of a boss.

Leader Is Needed.

"Never was the man of the hour so badly needed in Allegheny county as at present," said Chairman A. C. Robertson last evening. "It seems that in all of the thousands of Republicans he cannot be found."

Mr. Robertson says that his successor as chairman of the county committee has not been found. He does not know just why he was ordered out after conducting eight successful campaigns. Every man who has been suggested for the place has declined.

Judge Harry White of Indiana was here last night. He said that he had been away from home for almost a week and has not seen John P. Elkin. While in Washington Friday the judge saw Senator M. S. Quay, but did not learn whom he favored for governor. Judge White is for Elkin and says he thinks that he can be nominated.

STORY OF BRUTALITY.

Secretary Shaw Orders Investigation Accorded Immigrants Arriving at New York.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Commissioner of Immigration Fritchie received orders from Washington today to investigate stories that immigrants who land in this city at the battery are brutally treated by the special police on duty there.

A Brooklyn resident sent a batch of these stories to President Roosevelt and accompanied it with a statement that one of the instances he knew from personal observation to be true. The president, after looking over the papers, sent them to Secretary Shaw who in turn forwarded them to Mr. Fritchie with orders to apply the probe.

Commissioner Fritchie is already out in a denial of the charges. He and his police declare that it is not the immigrants who are lashed with whips. It is, they say, the horde of hotel runners, idlers, "sharks" and other men who have no legitimate business at the battery and who menace the immigrants as they land. The officers declare that the only way to get rid of these pests, as they term them, is to use violence.

REEDER'S STAND IS DISCOUNTED

HOLDING OFFICE UNDER STONE, HIS ACTION IS UNDERSTOOD.

Senator Quay Fully Expected He Would Support Elkin For Governor—During The Combine Fight He Spent His Time at a Safe Distance in Europe.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, 603 Fifteenth St., N. W., WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.

The report from Easton, Pa., that Republican State Chairman Reeder had declared in favor of the nomination of John P. Elkin for governor, was no surprise to Senator Quay. He has known for some days that Gen. Reeder was inclined to go that way, for fear of losing his position as commissioner of banking under Gov. Stone.

It is recalled in this connection that Gen. Reeder was made secretary of the commonwealth under Gov. Hastings by Senator Quay's influence, and when a few months later the "combine" fight broke out Gen. Reeder got on board of a fast steamer bound for Europe and remained there until the fight was over and Senator Quay was the victor. His action in the present case, therefore, had been discounted in advance and as a result the plans have been laid to secure the vote of Northampton county in opposition to the nomination of Mr. Elkin regardless of the position taken by Gen. Reeder.

A New Chairman Wanted.

At the same time a loyal man is to be selected for state chairman who does not measure his loyalty by the salary of an office.

Senator Quay had a quiet day, with but two notable callers. The first was Representative Sibley, who called to tender his services in any way to bring about the selection of a popular candidate for governor and incidentally to put forth some strong arguments favorable to the nomination of Attorney General Knox. The other was Representative Connell, who but recently declared himself in the Elkin ice wagon.

What occurred at this conference cannot be ascertained. It may be that Mr. Connell desired to have a personal talk with the senator before the arrival of Mr. Elkin, who is expected to come here in a few days to endeavor to make some recruits among the members of the delegation.

Elkin Out of the Question.

One of the senator's callers this afternoon asked him the direct question if there is any possibility of Mr. Elkin being the nominee for governor this year. "Absolutely none," was the emphatic reply.

Senator Quay expects to leave here probably on Tuesday for a trip through the state. He may go first to Philadelphia and thence to Lancaster, Harrisburg, Pittsburgh and Beaver.

Democratic State Chairman Creasy was here today as a guest at a social dinner and left tonight for his home. Mr. Creasy is not alarmed over the reports that he is not to be re-elected state chairman. On the contrary, he has been advised that he will be re-elected, as practically there is no opposition to him. On the advice of friends he will not mix in the contest for governor in any way, but as state chairman will hold a strictly impartial attitude.

CHARLES W. METZGAR.

Watres Seeking Delegates.

HARRISBURG, PA., April 20.—(Special.)—Ex-Lieut. Gov. L. A. Watres of Scranton has registered as a candidate for governor in Northumberland county and notified Republican County Chairman Shindle yesterday. Northumberland county has two sets of candidates for delegates, one of which was put up by Senator Focht of Union and the other by ex-Congressman Kulp, who claims that Focht has no right to go into Northumberland and name delegates.

Col. Watres will send notice next week to County Chairman Weish of Huntingdon that he wishes his name to be registered as a candidate for governor and will make a fight there.

Elkin Wins Some Delegates.

WILKESBARRE, PA., April 20.—Complete returns received from the Republican primaries held yesterday in the Third legislative district give Elkin a good working majority in the district convention that meets tomorrow and which, it is thought, will elect two delegates to the state convention pledged to vote for the attorney general for governor.

In the election yesterday the Quay supporters really had no candidate to vote for, as Quay has not said a word in favor of Watres' candidacy, so far as is known. The want of a definite policy also has made a mix-up in the contests for nominations for the assembly, and Penrose, it is believed, is the loser thereby.

MAY BE DIFFICULT TO SECURE ADVANCE

Sheet Metal Workers Ask for a Rise in Wages, But Three Conferences Have Failed of an Agreement.

Leaders of the sheet metal workers of Pittsburgh expect difficulty in establishing the advanced wage rate which they propose for May 1. The advance asked is only 20 cents a day, but the Pittsburgh organization has recently annexed to it the McKeesport workers, who are working at a lesser wage rate and for them it is proposed to establish the Pittsburgh rate. Another conference to adjust the differences may be held with the Sheet Metal and Cornice Manufacturers' association before May 1, but none is arranged, three previous conferences having failed.

In Pittsburgh the sheet metal workers are now working under an agreement providing for $3 for an eight-hour day. Their demand is for $3 20 the day. The McKeesport men now get from $2 50 to $2 75 for a nine-hour day. About 550 men of the craft are now members of the Pittsburgh union, which is one of the five important branches of the Sheet Metal Workers National Alliance, launched in Pittsburgh in February. This alliance has already established a defense fund which will be available in case of a strike here. Nearly 200 employers are concerned in the scale negotiations.

The McKeesport men are partly organized with the intention of going into the International Association of Sheet Metal Workers, from which the Pittsburgh and other important unions withdrew about a year ago. Business Agent M. O'Sullivan of the Pittsburgh workers arranged to take the McKeesport branch into the Pittsburgh union and now plans to establish the better Pittsburgh wage conditions for these men along with the proposed advance of 20 cents a day here.

COL. CROWDER REPORTS.

Tells the President All About British Transport Operation on the Mississippi River.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—Col. E. H. Crowder of the army, who has been investigating the charges that the British government is maintaining a supply station in Louisiana for horses for use of the British army in its fight with the Boers, has arrived here and saw Acting Secretary Sanger of the war department today, to whom he outlined the nature of the investigation he had made and submitted a report.

Mr. Sanger declined to talk concerning the report. Tonight Col. Crowder and Mr. Sanger saw the president, who was informed of the nature of the report Col. Crowder would make.

POLICE OFFICER BADLY INJURED DODGING A RAID

Charles McCray Broke Both Legs Trying to Escape from Gambling House.

THE THIRD TIME CAUGHT

Inspector Wills Found the Injured Man Lying in the Yard Beneath the Window From Which he Jumped to Escape Arrest.

Rather than submit to the disgrace of being arrested in a gambling house while the place was being raided late Saturday night, Policeman Charles McCray jumped from the third story window into the yard of No. 1207 Fifth avenue and broke both his legs. He was removed to the Homeopathic hospital and it was reported there last night that his condition was serious. McCray heard that his fellow-officers were below, and getting up from the table went to the window and jumped out. He fell 22 feet before he struck the ground.

Supt. of Police John McAleese had been gathering evidence against this house for the last week. The place was run by Morris Swartz and Jacob Barrett.

The Raid Ordered.

The superintendent ordered the place to be raided Saturday night and a squad of policemen, under the direction of Inspector Fred Wills, went to the given address to make the arrests. The inspector reached the place first, the squad of patrolmen following him. One of the inmates saw the patrolmen gather around the house, and, hurrying to the room, gave the alarm.

"I must get out," McCray said to the men in the room. "This makes the third time for me to be pulled in gambling houses."

Taking what money he had on the table he ran to the window, and, climbing to the sill, he leaped to the ground.

Seen by the Inspector.

Just as he left the sill Inspector Wills saw him fall. Wills ran to the window ledge and said: "Charley, why did you do that?" McCray lay in the yard groaning. Several policemen hurried to the rear of the house and picked him up. He was immediately taken to the Homeopathic hospital.

When the physicians made an examination of his injuries they found that his right leg was broken at the thigh and his left leg broken at the ankle. In addition to this he was injured internally.

Officer McCray has been in ill-luck for some time. Last summer while he was making an arrest he struck Michael Evans, who died from the blow. Evans was making a desperate resistance and McCray hit him on the head. McCray stood trial and was sentenced to the work house for 90 days.

Good Officer When on Duty.

Supt. McAleese said that McCray was an excellent officer while on duty. He has been arrested three times, however, in gambling houses. Each time he has paid his fine and has been released.

He resides with his mother at No. 442 Third avenue. McCray has been in the police department for seven years and is well thought of by his fellow officers. There were 17 persons arrested in the raid and all paid their fines and were released. Swartz and Morris were held for a hearing this morning before Police Magistrate Bernard McKenna.

SIXTY HOMES BURNED.

Many Poor Families of Kansas City Lose Their All in Sunday Fire.

KANSAS CITY, MO., April 20.—A destructive fire visited the southwestern part of this city today, laying waste a section of dwelling houses almost a quarter of a mile long and a block wide, and doing damage to the amount of $75,000. John Stinne of Quincy, Ill., a spectator, was seriously injured by a falling piece of iron, and Edward Bennett, a fireman, was overcome by heat.

About 50 dwelling houses were destroyed and 60 or more families rendered homeless. A high wind was blowing and the flames spread with alarming rapidity. Because of a mistake in the alarm the arrival of the firemen was delayed and the flames gained much headway before they commenced operations.

The fire started in a grocery store and after destroying nearby buildings was carried by the strong wind up a steep hill, making the work of the firemen extremely difficult. Burning embers were blown more than half a mile and for a time all of that portion of the city was threatened. After three hours of hard fighting the fire was under control. Many persons lost all of their property. Much furniture and other property was destroyed after having been piled in supposed places of safety.

Most of the residents who suffered loss are poor. Those who need assistance are being cared for temporarily by neighbors and charitable institutions.

CAMPAIGN IN SAMAR TO BE INVESTIGATED

Gen. Jacob H. Smith's Return from the Philippines Is Deferred.

ARE STILL SURRENDERING

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

MANILA, April 20.—The United States army transport Buford left here today for San Francisco, after having been detained in quarantine for five days. Gen. Jacob H. Smith, who was in command of the American forces in the island of Samar, at the time Maj. L. W. T. Waller of the marine corps is said to have executed natives of that island without trial, was to have gone home on the Buford, but has disembarked here.

Orders have been received here from Washington to hold a court of inquiry into the general conduct of affairs in Samar. Gen. Smith claims that, to the best of his belief, the officers and men of his command in Samar had to face insurmountable difficulties, that the hardships they encountered were almost unbearable and that the treachery of the natives of the island is unequaled in the history of warfare.

He says that the American soldiers acted, in the circumstances, with the greatest forbearance shown in the war in the Philippines. Campaigning in Samar is not a pleasure trip, but a stern reality, said Gen. Smith. He also expressed his doubt if the troops of any nation in the world would or could have acted in the circumstances in Samar as well as did the Americans.

Surrenders to the American authorities of small parties of insurgents are reported daily, and these have increased since the recent surrender of the insurgent Gen. Malvar. Gen. Ruffino with 29 officers and 375 soldiers, has surrendered to the native constabulary in the province of Misamis, in Mindanao, where the constabulary are co-operating with the military.

Gen. Chaffee has forwarded to Gen. J. Franklin Bell the congratulations sent the latter by President Roosevelt upon the recent campaign in Batangas and Laguna provinces conducted by Gen. Bell.

BRITISH PEACE TERMS LAID BEFORE BURGHERS

Officers of Republics Go Out to Meet Soldiers in the Field.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

BALMORAL, CAPE COLONY, April 20.—Gen. Lucas Meyer, commander-in-chief of the Orange Free State forces; State Secretary Reitz of the Transvaal, and the other members of their party arrived here last night and this morning proceeded to the north. They were accompanied by a British escort, and it is their intention to consult with the Boers in the field.

PRETORIA, April 20.—Gen. DeWet has gone to Heilbron, Orange River Colony; Gen. Botha, the Transvaal commander-in-chief, has gone to Vryheid, Transvaal, and Gen. Delarey, together with Mr. Steyn, ex-president of the Orange Free State, have gone to Klerksdorp, Transvaal. They have arranged to meet the burghers at different rendezvous and submit the British terms.

It is believed the Transvaalers will everywhere accept the terms, as they are in no way anxious for a winter campaign. The only difficulty likely to occur will, it is thought, be with the Orange Free Staters, many of whom are expected to prove recalcitrant.

In the meantime, there will be no cessation of hostilities. The delegates are expected back in Pretoria the middle of May and, in anticipation of their return, they have given orders here for new clothes, provisions, etc.

Baron de Rothschild and W. K. Vanderbilt to Contest in Automobiles.

PARIS, April 20.—(Copyright Cable.)—The 100-kilometer 62½ miles) automobile race between Baron Henri de Rothschild and William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., is to be run on the Paris and Trouville road some time in May.

Both men have been over the road; the baron is said to have done 70 miles or more in a time that made the coming race seem big. Mr. Vanderbilt, however, did a kilometer (1,093 yards), in 33 seconds, within 3 1-5 seconds of Serpollet's sensational record, made recently at Nice.

Charred Bodies Found in the Ruins of a London Building.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, April 20.—A fire broke out last midnight in Hackney, a suburb of London, in a printer's warehouse, three stories high, the top floor of which was used for living rooms.

When the flames were finally under control, the charred bodies of a man, two women and four children, were found.

A dozen fire engines and escapes arrived promptly at the scene, but the flames were of overmastering power and it was impossible to enter the building.

Universal Suffragists Attempt to March to Palace of Sweden's King.

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN, April 20.—Mass meetings in favor of universal suffrage were held today in all the towns of Sweden. In Stockholm the meeting was attended with considerable disorder.

The demonstrators tried to march to the palace of King Oscar. They were charged by the police and several of them were wounded. Others were arrested. The approaches to the channel are now guarded by troops. The meeting at Malmoe was attended by about 15,000 persons.

Queen's Condition Unchanged.

THE HAGUE, April 20.—The condition of Queen Wilhelmina remains practically unchanged. She does not lose consciousness and has taken a little more nourishment. The prince consort and the queen's physicians left Castle Loo for a short time today. This is regarded as a favorable sign.

SMALL BOY DROWNED.

William Burke, 5 Years Old, of No. 107 Pike Street, Met Death in Allegheny River.

While playing on a large log in the Allegheny river at the foot of Fourteenth street yesterday afternoon, William Burke, 5 years old, of No. 107 Pike street, slipped into the river and was drowned. There were a number of other boys playing at the edge of the wharf when the accident occurred. They had just stepped off the log when it turned and threw the boy into the water. The body was recovered about 11 o'clock last night. It was discovered by Thomas Garey lodged against some barges close to the shore about 30 feet from where the boy had fallen in.

The boys had been playing there almost all day. They were driven away from the place about a half hour before the accident occurred. Burke was more venturesome than the others and would walk the length of the log. His little friends stepped off when he was at the end farthest out in the stream. The log turned and he fell into the river.

He went down in 14 feet of water. It is believed that he drifted under some barges moored there and was unable to [illegible]. He was a son of James Burke, a roller in the Zug mills. The matter was reported to the police and grappling hooks were sent to the scene of the accident.

Conspirators Blamed for the Destruction of Barracks in Nicaragua.

BURY HUMAN FRAGMENTS

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA, April 20.—In the explosion which occurred here the night of April 16 a large two-story barracks situated near the lake front and in the center of the city was blown to fragments. Between 100 and 200 officers and soldiers are reported to have been killed and many soldiers and other persons are reported to have been injured. A large number of houses near the barracks, including the National hotel, the Central telegraph station and the national palace were damaged by the wreck.

President Zelaya was at Managua at the time of the explosion, but he hurriedly returned to Managua on horseback. He has published a statement in which he attributes the disaster to the work of conspirators. He says that tons of dynamite in addition to a quantity of powder were stored in the barracks. The actual causes which led to the explosion have not yet been determined.

After the first explosion the police notified the terrified people to temporarily leave the city, as it was thought the burning building still contained dynamite. Large numbers consequently fled to the suburbs. The people who fled at the time of the explosions are returning today.

The fragments of the numerous dead, who were not blown to atoms, are being buried. The present lowest estimate of the damage caused by the explosion in houses, furniture, cannon and war material is five million pesos.

Over a Million Dollars Ahead

The Pittsburgh Agency of the Equitable Life Assurance Society has again broken all records in the way of business getting, having written and forwarded to the Society since January first applications for assurance aggregating

$4,264,786

This is a gain over last year's record of $1,219,286. During the first eighteen days of this month the agency wrote 451 applications, aggregating

1,294,900

This is the largest amount of business ever secured in so short a time by any Equitable Agency—

COAL DEPOSITS ARE SOURCE OF GREAT RICHES

Bituminous Fields of Western Pennsylvania Furnish Sinews of Industry.

THE AREA IS 12,200 MILES

Report of United States Geological Survey Furnishes Interesting Statistics on the Mining Industry in This Field.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, 603 Fifteenth st., N. W. Washington, D. C., April 20.

That the source of Pittsburgh's industrial supremacy lies in the great coal deposits which underlie nearly all the counties of Western Pennsylvania, especially those contiguous to Pittsburgh, is brought forcibly to mind by the report of the United States geological survey, soon to be issued at Washington.

The bituminous coal field of Pennsylvania embraces the northeastern end of the great Appalacian series of the coal measures. It includes an area of about 12,200 square miles, lying chiefly in the western part of the state, and spreading from Ohio, West Virginia and Maryland northeastward to New York. The coal-bearing rocks cover practically the whole of Greene, Washington, Allegheny, Westmoreland, Beaver, Lawrence, Butler, Armstrong, Jefferson, Indiana, Clearfield and Cambria counties, and the greater parts of Fayette, Somerset, Elk, Clarion and Mercer counties, besides parts of Crawford, Venango, Forest, Warren, McKean, Cameron, Blair, Center, Clinton, Potter, Lycoming, Tioga and Bradford counties.

The Broad Top Basin.

Besides the main area the Broad Top basin in Huntingdon and Bedford counties has an area of about 40 square miles, and is about 30 miles east of the Allegheny front.

All available information regarding this, the most important of the bituminous coal fields of the United States, is summarized in part III. of the XXII. annual report of the United States geological survey, now in press, by Messrs. David White and M. R. Campbell, who have drawn largely for their material upon the report of the second geological survey of Pennsylvania.

The principal commercially workable beds of the state are the Sharon or block coal, whose commercial history dates from 1837, mined in nine counties; the Mercer or Alton coals, mined in 12 counties; the Clarion coal, mined in nine counties; the lower Kittanning, mined in 17 counties; the middle Kittanning, mined in a few places; the upper Kittanning coal, mined in 12 counties; the lower Freeport coal, mined in 13 counties; the upper Freeport, mined in 18 counties; the Callitzin coal, mined in five counties; the Pittson coal, mined in two counties; the Berlin coal, mined in Somerset county; the Elk Lick coal, mined in four counties; the Little Pittsburgh coal and the Painter coal, mined in localities; the Pittsburgh coal, mined in six counties; the Redstone coal, mined in four counties; the Sewickley coal, mined in three counties; the Uniontown coal, mined in three counties; the Waynesburg coal, mined in three counties; the Washington coal, mined in two counties.

Distinguishing Qualities.

The Sharon block coal, strong, free from sulphur and valuable for furnace use near the Ohio line, becomes dirty, sulphurous, patchy and of little value to the eastward. The coals of the Mercer group, dirty, and of little account westward, are locally very free from sulphur toward the northeast in Tioga, Lycoming and Bradford, where the celebrated Bloss coal is highly valued for forge and domestic purposes, and produces from 72 to 82 per cent of coke near near Blossburg. The Brookville bed, in Jefferson county and along the Allegheny slopes, is serviceable only as a somewhat sulphurous heavy steam coal; but in the Broad Top basin, in Huntington and Bedford counties, it is proving a valuable steam fuel and has been coked.

Kittanning Coal Valuable.

The lower Kittanning coal, mined to a small extent for steam purposes in the Allegheny valley, is a valuable coking coal in northern and eastern Clearfield county, in eastern Cambria county, and in Blair county. In the eastern region it is also locally important as a smithing coal, and is a valuable heavy steam coal in the Broad Top field. The upper Kittanning, of minor value for steam and gas purposes in the western districts, becomes of some importance as a steam and domestic fuel in parts of Clearfield, Cambria and Somerset, and makes a good coke in the Snow Shoe basin of Center county.

The lower Freeport coal, mined in southern Elk, eastern Jefferson, northern Indiana, in the Shawmut-Reynoldsville-Punxsuwtawney basin, and in the northern Cambria and in eastern Clearfield county to the Moshannon creek, in the Philipsburg-Houtzdale basin, is especially valuable for high-grade steam, gas and cooking purposes and also for smithing and welding. The upper Freeport coal, mined chiefly in the lower Allegheny and Kiskiminetas valleys to the west and near the Allegheny slopes on the east, in Armstrong, Westmoreland, Indiana and Cambria counties is used as a steam coking coal.

Source of Coking Industry.

The great Pittsburgh coal is adapted to high-grade steam, smithing and rolling mill use in Somerset county, and to steam and railroad use in southern Indiana county. In eastern Westmoreland and Fayette counties it is the source of an enormous coking industry, and farther westward it is especially valuable as a gas coal. Everywhere it is a very high-grade steam coal. The greater part of the Connellsville coke is shipped to the furnaces of western Pennsylvania.

The Pennsylvania beds of the Appalachian coal fields were the first to be commercially developed. The earliest record of coal mining in the Pittsburgh region is that supplied by Capt. Thomas Hutchins, who visited Fort Pitt (now Pittsburgh) in 1770, and found a coal mine opened on the opposite side of the Monongahela river.

Influence of Steam Engine.

With the advent of the first steam engine in Pittsburgh in 1794 the demand for the new fuel increased and by 1800 a number of mines were in operation on both sides of the Monongahela river, and coal was used quite extensively in salt works, glass factories and for general purposes. The first coal was shipped from Pittsburgh in 1803. As early as 1804 barges of coal for sale were loaded in Clearfield county and floated down the Susquehanna to Columbia in Lancaster. By 1825 it is reported that about 3,500 tons were used in the vicinity of Pittsburg. This local consumption increased to 400,000 tons in 1846, in which year 244,000 tons were sent down the Ohio river, and 23 steamboats were built for the river trade.

The next year 56 boats were added to those already in use. About 1842 the Beaver basin, Tioga county, began commercial shipments, and the development of the Barclay basin, Bradford county, followed not long after. The use of the Sharon block coal in the furnaces of Mercer county is said to have begun in the same decade. The rapid exploitation of the coals in Cambria county dates practically from the time of the construction of the State Portage and the Pennsylvania railways. The remarkable developments of the Reynoldsville basin began soon after the construction of the Low Grade division of the Allegheny Valley railway in 1872.

Eclipsed by Connellsville.

The development of these fields is eclipsed by the wonderful progress made in the size and number of plants and in the increased production of coke in the Connellsville and adjacent basins in the past few years. From less than 100 ovens in 1860 the field has grown to about 25,000 ovens in 1901.

The bituminous coal production of Pennsylvania has increased from 1,000,000 tons in 1847 to over 42,000,000 tons in 1890 and to over 75,000,000 tons in 1900. The production of coke in 1900 was over 12,000,000 tons. Somewhat more than one-half, or nearly three-fifths, of the bituminous production of the state in 1900 was derived from the Pittsburgh coal, the remainder, about 40 per cent, being derived chiefly from the lower Kittanning and the two Freeport coals.

In 1892 the number of mines was 88 in Allegheny, 85 in Fayette, 92 in Westmoreland, 122 in Clearfield, 76 in Cambria and 19 in Somerset—a total of 482. In 1901 there were 99 in Allegheny, 117 in Fayette, 188 in Westmoreland, 127 in Clearfield, 130 in Cambria and 53 in Somerset—a total of 714. The indications point to a rapid extension of mining operations in the near future. Mr. White thinks it not improbable that the great Pittsburgh bed may eventually be worked at sea level. There are as yet no "deep" mines in the bituminous bashis, all but a small percentage of the mines being worked by drift on the outcrop or by gentle slope down the dip of the bed. The room and pillar system is used in most mines of the region.

Machine Mining in Vogue.

A large proportion of the mines use machines for mining and many of these machines are driven by compressed air. The Pennsylvania coal and its coke product are distributed by the trunk lines of railway to the Atlantic, to the Great Lakes and into the western interior, and by the Ohio river to the south and to gulf ports. The reports indicate that the present capacity of the existing mines is from 25 to 35 per cent in excess of the current production. The average number of days of operation of the mines during 1900 varied from 181 in the Eighth Inspection district to 261 in the Ninth district.

In general the steadiest operation was in the coking districts. The average period of operation during the year for the entire region was 219 days. The cost of mining in the bituminous fields varies greatly in different areas, the rates being governed primarily by the thickness and structure of the bed, though they are also affected by the general geographic location and by the relations of the mine to the wage scale districts. The cost of production of coal f. o. b. cars varies apparently from about 47½ cents to $1 30 per ton—which figures do not seem to be reliably suggestive. The number of men engaged in and about the mines in 1900 was 100,018, each of whom produced an average of 727.5 tons of coal during the year.

IMPROVEMENTS HELD UP BY POOR SERVICE

Building Would Go Forward in Greenfield Were It Not for Inadequate Traction Service.

Recent purchasers of realty in the Greenfield district are holding up building which in a year would run into hundreds of thousands of dollars, till the traction monopoly consents to give them an adequate street car service. The citizens of the Twenty-third ward have organized to bring about this better service and will meet weekly till something tangible is accomplished.

If nothing is developed soon in this way the citizens promise to bring suit under an agreement made eight years ago with the original builders of the Greenfield avenue line, who subsequently sold to the Second avenue traction interests, the property being later taken over by the United Traction Company and then by the Philadelphia Company.

Joseph L. Good, one of the committeemen representing the Twenty-third ward citizens, says this agreement provided that Greenfield avenue was to be given a double track system, in consideration of which Senator William Flinn paid about $10,000 to the traction concern and the property holders along the route about $5,000. The line was completed as a single track line with a few switches. The citizens now figure that they have a case against the present owners of the line on this old agreement, but will not push it unless it is necessary.

At present there are about 5,000 people dependent on this Greenfield branch line and the waits occasioned by the transfer system and the crowded cars in Second avenue force many a workman and shop girl to be late at work, besides inconveniencing residents in the ward. St. Rosalia's church and the Greenfield Presbyterian church each have about 500 members who are supporting the grievances.

C. M. Pedder, who has represented Henry C. Frick in some of his recent transactions, represents a syndicate which is ready to cover an entire block in that district with residences, but will wait for adequate traction service. The Beechwood Improvement Company has 50 acres of lots sold, but buyers are delaying building because of the car service. This property was formerly the grounds of the Greenfield Gun club. The Squirrel Hill Land Company has also sold 40 acres of lots, but building is tied up pending the traction issue.

F. E. Bialas has started work on the first of 60 houses near Greenfield avenue. They will be modern homes of brick. It is threatened to delay this work if a satisfactory car service is not secured.

Greenfield citizens to the number of about 200 met Saturday night. Resolutions which had been passed at a previous meeting and presented by Joseph L. Good and a committee to General Superintendent John Murphy of the Pittsburgh Railways Company last Wednesday were reported back. The resolutions asked that one of three suggestions for improving the service be carried out by the company. Mr. Murphy assured the committee, it is said, that the linking of the Greenfield avenue and Monongahela lines by the construction of about 100 feet of new track, thereby providing a loop, was under consideration and would probably be carried out.

FOR UNIFORM WAGE.

Some Contractors Grant Hoisting and Portable Engineers' Demand.

The hoisting and portable engineers, forming Pittsburgh local No. 66 of the International Union of Steam Engineers, is another of several Pittsburgh trade organizations which may have trouble to establish the May day wage demand. The engineers are asking for 50 cents an hour, while they now get different rates, running to about 40 cents an hour.

Business Agent A. J. Duffy said yesterday that the George A. Fuller Company has already agreed to the advanced wage, and that several of the heavy contractors are waiting on each other before entering an agreement. He anticipates that most of the 120 employers will arrange a settlement before May 1. The local numbers about 300 men.

Barbers in Harmony—The barbers in Wilkinsburg have unionized their shops and hereafter all shops will close at 8 o'clock in the evening, except on Saturdays, when they will close at 11:30 p. m.

Sunday at the Jail—James R. Reed conducted the religious services at the county jail yesterday. Rev. T. J. Leak of the Oakland Methodist Episcopal church preached a sermon and the choir of that church rendered the music.

Police Courts Busy—The police magistrates of the two cities disposed of 182 cases yesterday. Pittsburgh Central station headed the list with 110 cases, the greater number of the persons arrested being charged with gambling.

Died at the Hospital—Harry Glockner died at the West Penn hospital yesterday morning from injuries received on Saturday at Brownsville, where he was struck by a train on the Pittsburgh, Virginia & Charleston railroad. He was about 40 years of age.

Woman's Sudden Death—The coroner was notified yesterday of the sudden death of Mrs. Louise Demler, a widow, whose home was in Amanda street, Knoxville borough. She died Saturday evening while sitting in a chair reading a paper. She was 52 years of age.

Recital in Wilkinsburg—The musical recital to be given by the choir of the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal church of Wilkinsburg, Thursday evening, is creating more than usual interest. The affair will be given in the church parlors.

Outing for Children—The annual outing of the public schools of Wilkinsburg, given by the Wilkinsburg Call, will be held at Kennywood park this year, on June 5. Many new features for enjoyment will be added and it is expected that at least 10,000 persons will attend.

Young Girl Stricken—Eda Noftz, 17 years old, whose parents live in Puseys court, near Ninth street, was sent to the Municipal hospital yesterday by City Physician F. A. Booth. She has a mild form of smallpox. Her parents and five other children live in the same house, but all were vaccinated recently. Dr. Booth quarantined the house and vaccinated 15 children in the neighborhood.

Injuries Were Fatal—Martin Conroy of No. 298 Manor street, South Side, died at the South Side hospital at 5 o'clock yesterday morning. He was struck by a train on the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Youghiogheny railroad at the foot of South Seventeenth street last Thursday, and had his leg broken and his scalp torn. He was a warehouseman, about 30 years of age and married.

Pay Warrants Held Up—The public employes of the borough of East Pittsburgh, including the street laborers, can't get their warrants for last month. Councilman Milligan said at the last meeting of the council that no money ought to be paid out, as the borough officers, in his opinion, had no legal standing, there being no ordinance in existence creating their offices.

Horse Thief at Work—Thomas Meyers of Carnegie bought a horse and rig on Saturday from Thomas Hood, paying $800 for the turnout. He left it in Hood's stable over night, having no place of his own to keep it, and yesterday morning it was gone. Hood, who had gone to Washington, Pa., returned immediately when notified of Meyers' loss, but could throw no light on the matter.

Contractor Robbed—E. C. Frazier, a prominent contractor of South avenue, Wilkinsburg, was robbed of $45 by pickpockets on Saturday night. He thinks the money was taken from him while he was standing at the corner of Wood street and Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg. The police were notified but have no clue to the guilty person.

Fire Instead of Water—Two employes of the Pennsylvania Water Company at Wilkinsburg were seriously burned Saturday night, while hunting for a leak. They are Frank Arnold and James Warden. They raised the lid of a manhole at the corner of Penn and Swissvale avenues and lighted a match. The hole was full of sewer gas and an explosion took place, blowing the flames out over both men. They will recover.

Pastor Welcomed Home—Dr. Nathaniel Holmes, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Braddock, was welcomed home yesterday by his congregation on his return from a trip to the Holy Land. Dr. Holmes found that the entire church had been redecorated and the walls beautified by frescoing, all done under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the church. The chancel was filled with palms and flowers. Dr. Holmes preached on "Rejoicing in Hope."

A Church Entertainment—An entertainment entitled "The Story of the Puritans and Cavalier of the Twentieth Century" will be given in Penn hall, Wilkinsburg, Thursday and Friday evenings, under the auspices of the Wilkinsburg Christian church. The work will be under the supervision of Mrs. H. E. Monroe and will require over 200 people in the cast. Many of the best amateur actors and singers of the East End and Wilkinsburg will participate in the production.

Speakeasy Raided—Inspector of Police Robert Dennison with Sergeant William Wallace and Officers Michael Conley, Charles Shtevejey, James Delahanty and J. D. Scott yesterday raided an alleged speakeasy at No. 2545 Spring alley conducted by Stany Nairck. The proprietor and twenty-one men were included in the haul.

New Postoffice Needed—Citizens of Wilkinsburg, are agitating the question of a handsome new postoffice building for the borough. The cause of the stir being made among business men in the town is the late quarterly statement issued showing the large increase in the business being done at the present postoffice. The recent report of the superintendent shows that the receipts in the three months, ending March 31, were nearly $27,500, which is an increase over the same months of last year of $6,300.

Tile Layers May Strike—Encaustic and mosaic tile layers threaten to join the strike of the tile layers' helpers today or tomorrow. This has been reported to the Building Trades Council, in which body the tile layers have petitioned to be reinstated. There are about 200 organized in the craft and their decision to strike arose from non-union men taking the places of the tile helpers, who are organized in the same general organization.

The Technological School.

The latest report on the subject of a site for the Carnegie technological school is a compromise between the ambitious desires of some members of the board and the site originally proposed. The experts employed to formulate plans have outlined a collection of buildings requiring a tract of 21 acres. The larger plan was for a tract double that size, while the tract that has seemed the most available contained but 11 acres. The 21 acres that are in view comprise part of the Schenley farm, between Fifth and Center avenues, the whole of which some have wished to acquire, and it is believed it can be secured for a sum not greatly in excess of that required for the purchase of the 11-acre tract. The site is probably the most important thing just now, all else being a mere matter of detail work, in view of the fact that the expenses will be met by Mr. Carnegie. But it is interesting to know that plans are so well advanced as is indicated in the report the experts have rough drawn, to be filled out later. There will be provision for 2,500 students in day classes and for 1,500 in night classes, and the curriculum will embrace everything that might be expected in a school of this kind in a community such as this. There will be abundant opportunity for the ambitious mechanic and millworker as well as the student to "rise to higher things." For young women, also, there will be a school of the domestic sciences and arts, and we are impelled to believe that they will not be limited to this, should their ambition spur them further.

Fate of the City of Pittsburgh.

The terrible fate that overtook so many persons in the burning of the City of Pittsburgh above Cairo, Ill., will cause a thrill of horror in this city. Though the boat has been running of late on the lower rivers, it has been considered a Pittsburgh boat, having been designed for the trade of these waters and having been named for this city. It was one of the most magnificent boats that ever tied up at a Pittsburgh landing. The loss of life is large, and one Pittsburgh name is in the long list of victims. The fire swept the boat like a hurricane, and it burned so quickly that it is almost a marvel that any escaped.

St. Louis Exposition Postponement.

From the circumstance that the St. Louis papers begin to see merit in the idea of holding the Louisiana Purchase centennial exposition in 1904, it is a safe guess that in a short time all the strenuous denials of an intention to postpone the fair will be retracted in a proposition to hold it one year later than the date first set. The St. Louis Globe Democrat welcomes a suggestion that if the exposition is held in 1904 both political parties will make the exposition city the convention city. The "sentimental reasons" for holding the fair in 1903, the same paper also discovers to be met for 1904 by the fact that "it was in 1804 that the transfer of upper Louisiana to the United States took place," the ceremonies attending the transfer having been held in St. Louis, while the part of Louisiana then transferred included all the section of Louisiana surrounding St. Louis, "and much more than half of the province in actual area." And it is further pointed out that "If a postponement becomes imperative," the extension of another year would work for a better foreign exhibit, the complaint of foreign nations of a lack of time for preparation being "the chief reason why postponement is urged by anybody."

Plainly, St. Louis is looking for excuses for postponement, and as a number of excuses are at hand, a postponement may be considered certain.

Miles and Disaster.

The Baltimore American, which has been transformed into a consistent critic of the national administration by the Schley affair, professes to be impressed that "Gen. Miles' retirement would be as disastrous to his (Roosevelt's) chances of re-election as it would be to the public welfare." Putting aside Roosevelt's "chances of re-election" as too remote for present consideration, and keeping to the other half of the declaration, it would be interesting to be told wherein would be the disaster "to the public welfare" were Gen. Miles placed on the retired list. That Gen. Miles may have been right in his comment on the conduct of the war in the Philippines and the administration wrong in condemning his expressions has little to do with the matter. The Philippine war controversy is a mere side issue. The administration's justification for enforced retirement of Miles would be that he is out of tune, being continually in opposition. It is a fault of temperament working out bad results such as recently resulted in a clean sweep in the bureau of immigration to the satisfaction of everyone but the victims. Other men no less illustrious than Miles have retired and been retired from the public service without "disaster to the public welfare." It is featuring the present commanding general of the army as a very important factor in public affairs to say that to do with him as the law permits would knock the props from under things. The public welfare is not dependent on Gen. Miles or anyone else, and he and many others could be lost to the public service without inviting disaster. The sun does not await the general's morning gun to rise, nor does it linger for his sunset salute. The United States was here before him and will remain after him.

A Smokeless Time Coming.

An announcement that "officials of the Lake Shore line have determined to do away with the smoke nuisance on the entire road by the use of a new smoke consuming device," is of unusual importance. If this result can be achieved by one railroad it can be achieved by all railroads, and by others than railroads, and as there is an apparent economy in abolishing the smoke nuisance it is among the things safe to prophesy that all railroads will abolish it, just as they have bettered themselves by the adoption of mechanical devices and safety appliances of one sort and another. Doubtless railroad managers and others would have long ago ended the smoke could they have done so without additional cost, but if in abolishing it they effect an actual saving the days of the smokeless locomotive and the smokeless stationary engine are at hand. We will not hope for too much too soon for fear of disappointment, but it is encouraging to find an official of the Lake Shore railroad saying: "We have found that soft coal can be used, as the attachment not only consumes the smoke but shows a saving of at least one ton of coal on an ordinary run," and that under the new instructions in the use of this consumer firemen were "given to understand that smoke on the Lake Shore will not be tolerated." If the Vanderbilt line in general practice makes good the claims of its prospectus then is a good smokeless time coming.

Olympian Games at Chicago.

When Sir Thomas Lipton next visits Chicago he may take with him his new Challenger, Shamrock III., to participate in the Olympian games. A yacht race at an Olympic tournament is an idea which owes its origin to Chicago, and which could develop nowhere else. Chicago is about to build a great Flavian amphitheater such as once graced ancient Rome, with a seating capacity ten times larger than that of Madison Garden, New York. The games will consume a large part of September and October. The length of time seems considerable, but in reality it may prove too short if the program is to be carried out in its entirety. An international yacht race, Olympic games, a Flavian amphitheater! What more is required to impress the public mind with the omnipotent greatness of Chicago?

No Cloistered Universities.

At the installation of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler as president of Columbia college in New York city, Dr. Patton of Princeton, said: "The universities must come out of their cloistered seclusion." We think they have done so—at least in the United States. At the head of the American university of today is to be found a man of affairs—a scholarly man of affairs, of great executive ability. He must be all of this or he fails. A university is a great business institution, as well as a place of learning. It cannot be a place of cloistered seclusion. Young men are trained therein for active participation in the affairs of life. The student of today is not merely instructed; he is developed. At least such is the aim. The executive head of an institution that essays to do this for hundreds and thousands of young men must touch the world at every point if his work is to bear fruit. He is an educator and much more. The new president of Columbia is of this type. A man of the same stamp was his predecessor—the present mayor of the metropolis of America, the great city of New York. Neither is the product of cloistered seclusion. Each is alive, strenuous and abreast of the best and most useful in the arts and sciences and principles of action in the active, stirring, generative, creative world. Of such stuff are the directors of the modern university and their work does not smell of the must and mold of old books.

Claremont, N. H., boasts an "educator and journalist" who has proved to the world the possibility of supplying food for one at sixty-five cents a week by doing it. It is almost needless to say that he is the one, and the writer who exploits him declares "he is 68 and women have no charms for him." It is perhaps needless to add that a man so economical has no charms for women or for men, either.

After all that has been said, select council's investigating committee ought to feel impelled to not only leave the door open, but have it taken off the hinges.

A billion dollar pool to bull stocks in Wall street is reported, but whether a two billion dollar public can be coaxed to hold the bag later on isn't programed.

Marse Henry Watterson continues to insist that President Roosevelt is a "bronco buster." All right colonel, so he is, and a good one.

The bogus check man is touring the small towns at the expense of the resident merchants.

ORGANIZATION GROWING.

Steam Engineers Heard Encouraging Reports From International Union Yesterday.

President George V. Lighthall of the International Union of Steam Engineers was in Pittsburgh yesterday from Chicago headquarters and addressed a mass meeting of stationary engineers at No. 404 Smithfield street last night. The stationary engineers have a growing organization here, which is local No. 95 of the international union. This local will make no wage demand till it is fully organized.

President Lighthall said that while the general organization is less than six years old, it will send about 350 delegates to the annual convention to be held in the Avenue theater, Pittsburgh, beginning September 2. "We have over 110 locals scattered throughout the country, and 40 of these have been chartered since last September," said he.

President Lighthall has as yet received no official report of the decision of the executive board of the American Federation of Labor in the question of jurisdiction over the engineers in the Cincinnati breweries. This decision has been reported as in favor of the engineers having this jurisdiction, which had been contested by the brewery workers.

William A. Shaw, business agent of the machinists also addressed the meeting last night, as did A. J. Duffy, the Pittsburgh business agent. Duffy said that within a year organization will be pushed until about 12 locals have in their membership all of the 6,000 stationary engineers of the Pittsburgh district.

Returning to an Easier Sunday in New York

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, April 20.

Whether or not it was the consequence of the private conference yesterday between Gov. Odell, District Attorney Jerome and Police Commissioner Partridge, certain it is that this was not such a tight Sunday in the liquor-selling way as the two or three immediately previous. It is not that there was any rampant outbreak of law-breaking. The doors of saloons have been closed and locked decorously all day, and in most cases the window shades were removed so that the policeman on the beat could look straight into the barroom; but the "little joker," as the knowing ones call it, i. e., the side door, has been swinging both ways when the man inside recognized the applicant for a drink as "right." It is whispered that this is in accordance with the inner desire of the authoritics, who believe that an easy interpretation of the excise laws will be all the better for the city, and may, perhaps, make the defeat of Tammany all the more certain two years hence. There has not been more disorder today than one sees in New York on any Sunday. In fact, some conservative observers declare that there has been less visible drunkenness than on the day or days when the side door has been supposed to be fastened. Every old resident believes that the hullabaloo about Sunday closing will die out in the course of a few weeks, in any event. Butchers, grocers and dealers in the necessaries of life generally have been hauled up before magistrates and have been discharged in most cases, because the court regarded their arrest as persecution. The feast of the Passover is here now, and it is necessary that orthodox Jews should be able to buy their meat today. They have done it, too. Down in the Ghetto this morning dozens of butcher shops where kosher meat was sold were doing a big business, and the police did not interfere. It looks as if the old-fashioned New York Sunday, with a free rein for business in proper limits, were about to return. The present crusade has been too radical to be lasting.

Santos-Dumont's Ideas Ridiculed.

Lord Kelvin, who arrived from England yesterday on the Campania, is 80 years of age and has the positiveness that belong to his years and scientific achievements. He has invented many marvelous machines and is listened to as an authority when he chooses to discourse on sundry subjects in any form. He said yesterday that "the airship of the Santos-Dumont style is a snare and a delusion. A balloon with a paddle is an old idea and never can be of any practical use." And yet as eminent men as Lawrence Hamond have said, however, that the report of a new paper in Harlem is founded on what seems to be indubitable authority.

A Gay Saturday on Broadway.

Broadway was simply jammed with well-dressed, well-groomed humanity yesterday afternoon. The weather was perfect and it was Saturday afternoon, when many persons had closed up their business affairs for the week, thus being free for a leisurely walk along the boulevard of America. Being matinee day made it the more marked by the presence of the veils of millinery, and many a tour de force of the toilette. When the theaters had discharged their audiences, about 5 o'clock, the crowds were at height, and surely a more brilliant scene scarcely could be imagined. One of the interesting features of the crowd was the number of familiar faces that flashed by one in the course of a stroll from Twenty-third street to Herald square. Actors predominated, with sons of millionaires a close second. More than one young man walking gally down the promenade had the unmistakable Vanderbilt face, and there were Astors, Goulds, Goelets, Gerrys, Van Rensselaers, Ehlelaers and others in the familiar directory. Then the theatrical element: Burr McIntosh, Robert Hilliard, Francis Wilson, Wilton Lackaye, Henry E. Dixey, E. E. Rice, Daniel Frohman, with dozens of actresses not so easily recognized, since all were part of a high-colored parterre that confused one, moved along in the throng. And over all a clear blue sky and full shining sun. Gay? Well, what should you think?

Once a Graveyard, Now a Park.

Restful is the word that describes Washington park these bright spring days. I remarked this to a literary friend of mine, a former Pittsburgher, Rufus Rockwell Wilson, whose name has been a great deal in the book reviews lately on account of his historical book, published by the Lippincotts, about Washington, the city. "Yes," he returned, with a tired smile. "It inherits that attribute. It used to be a potter's field." This will be news to many people, as it was to me, but Mr. Wilson is writing another book for the Lippincotts, a history of the city of New York, and he spoke ex-cathedra.

Exit Circus; Enter "Wild West."

The circus has gone from Madison Square garden. It will be in Philadelphia all this week. According to the management, it never had a more profitable engagement in this city, and it is easy to believe that, for the big arena has been full to bursting at every performance. Buffalo Bill's "Wild West" will open in the garden tomorrow night, and there has been lots of bustle there today. The circus paraphernalia all got out before daylight, the menagerie being moved from the basement while the ring performance was still in progress. Col. Cody was a distinguished figure in Broadway today, while the picturesque cowboys, Mexicans and other members of the organization hung about the garden and smoked their pipes and cigarettes as if enjoying life as it came. As for the Indians they never show themselves outside the garden except when in the parade, but they were all there today and will be out for the ride through the city tomorrow, weather permitting.

Au Revoir to Grand Opera.

New York will see the very last of grand opera by the Maurice Grau song birds tomorrow night. Having returned from their short tour on the road since the closing of the regular season here, the singers look forward with pleasure to the winding up of their engagement at the Metropolitan. Several of them spoke enthusiastically of the reception the company had in other cities this spring. Particularly were they pleased with their Pittsburgh engagement. Duquesne garden strikes them as a most desirable building, acoustically and otherwise, and all the singers refer to the appreciative audiences. But then, Pittsburgh is used to that kind of remark. At the farewell performance tomorrow there will be selections from six operas. Beginning with an act from "Carmen," with Calve in the title role, there will be act I. of the "Die Walkure," act II. of "La Fille du Regiment," act IV. of "Otello," act V. of "L'Africaine," and act V. of "Faust." All the big artists will appear and general admission will be $2.

Near Townsfolk Going Abroad.

On the Cunard liner Saxonia, which is taking the place of the disabled Etruria between New York and Liverpool, and which sailed from this port yesterday, were two passengers from Sewickley, Miss Marie F. Bell and Miss Emily J. Bell, and one from East Liverpool, O., Mrs. William Challinor.

New Daily Newspaper for Harlem.

It is reported that a new evening paper is soon to be published in Greater New York. It will be in Harlem and will be Republican in politics, I believe. The backers are men of wealth and influence and it is expected that the sheet will make things livelier uptown than they ever have been, journalistically speaking. In these days, when there are so many new theaters on paper—it is refreshing to get the change from new theaters to men as newspaper. It should be said, however, that the report of a new paper in Harlem is founded on what seems to be indubitable authority.

Clean Elections Too Expensive.

The wave of retrenchment has struck the state election bureau. Supt. McCullagh, who has had a hard time of it ever since he got this position to compensate him for the loss of that of chief of police, will find the work of his bureau seriously crippled, it is said, by the refusal of Gov. Odell to sign the bill appropriating $10,000 extra for the use of the bureau. At this time, when the tendency is to cut down expenses in as many directions as possible, it was hardly to be expected that the election bureau would receive particular favor. Clean elections are appreciated in New York, but Father Knickerbocker believes they can be a little too costly to the taxpayers, too.

Sidewalk Ping-Pong.

Ping-pong has reached the streets of Greater New York—at least in Harlem. In one of the quiet "no-thoroughfare" residence streets of that happy locality yesterday two youngsters had stretched a piece of mosquito netting across the sidewalk from one area railing to a high post. Across this they were batting a rubber ball with two home-made bats. They said, in answer to a question, that they were playing ping-pong. "What rules are you using?" asked the inquirer, "English or German?" One of the lads, a bright-faced urchin of 12, answered promptly: "We have our own rules. I bat the ball to Walter till he misses a bounce, and then I have the right to whack him three times with my bat."

"Ping-Pong Wrist" in Fashion.

Of course it had to come, and here it is—the "ping-pong wrist." We have shrunk from the "bicycle face," put armies on the "tennis back," massaged the "golf shoulders," and now we must bandage the "ping-pong wrist." The first well-developed case of the new complaint is found as the property of an actress. She is Miss Grace Cameron, a prima donna in comic opera, well-known in Pittsburgh as well as New York. But Miss Cameron is not the only victim; not if the press agents know it, she isn't. Other sufferers are Lillian Russell, Maud Adams, Edna Wallace Hopper, Jeannette Lowrie, Fay Templeton, Vivian Blackburn and Lulu Glaser. "There will be others as soon as the name of the ailment is noised up and down the Rialto. Now, what is the "ping-pong wrist?" It is described as a slight but unmistakable enlargement of the tendons of the right wrist, accompanied by sharp shooting pains. It is said to be prevalent in society, so that numerous debutantes and young matrons are under the care of their physicians. The "ping-pong wrist" is one of these afflictions that spread very fast, and it may reach Pittsburgh by the time this is published.

The Vegetarian's Opportunity.

Vegetarians feel that this is their time now that butchers' meat is said to be going up in price until it will be out of sight of persons of moderate income. Whether this is a well-founded fear or not, a man named Carl Ramussen, who conducts a vegetarian restaurant in Brooklyn, has begun to publish a daily bill of fare in one of the evening papers here, showing how one can live comfortably on a diet that does not include flesh meat. Here is his first publish menu, intended for dinner today:

SOUP.
Vegetable or Appia.
ENTREE.
Vegetarian Beefsteak. Macaroni with Tomatoes.
BOILED.
Boiled Nut Meat.
SALAD.
Banana.
ROAST.
Nut Roast.
VEGETABLES.
Green Peas. Lentils. Baked Potatoes.
DESSERT.
Honey. Apple Pie
Lemon Pudding. Prunes.
Vegetarian Coffee.
Grape Juice. Cocoa.
Milk. Chocolate.

The "meat" mentioned in the bill is a preparation of nuts and vegetables. Vegetarians declare it to be as nutritious as sirloin steak.

Bicycle Looping No Child's Play.

It is not such an easy thing to loop the loop on a bicycle as it seems from watching "Diavolo" in the circus. So says L. Pollay, who aspired to be understudy for the original loop-the-loop bicycler. Pollay had a bad tumble in Madison Square Garden yesterday. It was the first time he had tried the feat there, although he had been practicing at the Seabeach palace at Coney Island for a week. But he found the big loop that Diavolo used a more difficult track than his own by the seasnore, and away he went, when half-way around, falling 20 feet. Diavolo is willing to go around at every performance, but he may be indisposed some evening, and then there must be some one to take his place, even if he has to risk his neck in the job. Pollay is out of the running just now, with a sprained ankle; but he says he will be on the loop again before the Philadelphia engagement of the circus is ended, or know the reason why.

Ping-Pong a la Spelling Bee.

There was a lively ping-pong tournament on the Campania, which arrived at this port yesterday. It was won by a woman, Mrs. de Saige. Every day during the voyage the game was played with enthusiasm by 30 passengers in the cabin, 15 persons being on each side. The best players were matched against one another until on the last day of the voyage only one remained. One of these was Mrs. de Saige, her opponent being a man. The contest was watched with great interest, and when Mrs. de Saige finally won, it was given three cheers. Score cards showing the relative positions of each player were printed on the steamship.

KILLED AT A CROSSING.

Illinois Central Excursion Train Strikes Wagonload of People and Four Are Dead.

BOLIVAR, TENN., April 20.—At Loone, seven miles north of here, four persons were killed and a fifth fatally hurt by an Illinois Central train today. The dead are Dolph Irwin, Mrs. Dolph Irwin, George Murley, Mrs. George Murley. Sarah Irwin was badly hurt and may die.

The persons killed or wounded were in a wagon and attempted to cross the tracks when the second section of the special struck the vehicle.

PERSONALS.

Dr. R. A. F. Penrose, brother of Senator Boise Penrose of Philadelphia, passed through the city last night on the limited on his way to Arizona, where he is interested in the Commonwealth copper mine. The mine is located on the southern border of Arizona, near the Mexican line. Dr. Penrose only lately returned from a tour in Japan, Russia and the Philippine Islands. In speaking of the great Siberian railway, he said: "I took a train at Moscow and went as far as Vladivostok. It was a vestibuled train and was as fine as any train in this country. While the speed is not as great as in England or America, there are few stops and good time is made. In every country that I visited I found numbers of Americans. Some were traveling for pleasure, while others were engaged in business. The country between Moscow and Vladivostok is similar to our northwest, and is very picturesque in many places. The rolling stock and equipment of the road is of the best."

Sioux City is the receiving and distributing center for South Dakota, northwestern Iowa and northeastern Nebraska," remarked J. R. Lezotte, a merchant of Sioux City, last night, while on the limited. Many young farmers from Iowa and Illinois are taking up small farms on the large grazing grounds, which may in part be a cause for the scarcity of cattle in parts of South Dakota."

"The run of shad this season has been the best in many years," said W. H. Hall of Baltimore at the Baltimore & Ohio station last night. "Tons of them have been taken and many of the fish have been shipped as far west as Chicago. I noticed some Baltimore shad while I was in Chicago a few days ago and was prompted by curiosity to ask the price of one of them. The one I selected was a fine roe shad and weighed about seven pounds. The price for the fish was $1 50. In Baltimore the same fish could have been purchased for 40 cents. I don't think the increase in the price of meat will cause a rise in the price of fish in Maryland."

Charles A. Gardner, who is connected with the Chrome steel works of Brooklyn, was in the city last night on a sad errand. His wife died last month and her only sister lives in this vicinity. It was to find this sister and tell her of her loss that he came here. He had spent several days searching for her, but said last night he had been unsuccessful. The maiden name of Mr. Gardner's sister-in-law is Mary Rush, and the last time he had heard from her she was living in Allegheny. Mr. Gardner was born in this city, near the present Union station.

"This is the first time I have been in Pittsburgh in 20 years," said Samuel M. Biddison, president of the Indian Group Copper Mining Company, at the Baltimore & Ohio station last night. Twenty-five years ago I sold glassware in Pittsburgh, being engaged with one of the glass houses no longer in existence."

Dr. S. E. Simmons of Sacramento, Cal., who has been studying medicine in Germany for the past year and a half, passed through the city last night over the Baltimore & Ohio to his home. "While on a visit to Spain," he said, "I found that Americans visiting that country were treated with much courtesy. The war has at least given the haughty dons a better opinion of this country than they ever had before."

Cabinet-makers are becoming scarcer each year," remarked L. Harrison, a representative of a leading Cincinnati furniture house, at the Hotel Henry last night. "There are very few apprentices to be gotten."

Russell L. Mitchell, representing the Pittsburgh Drygoods Company, left last night for Chicago to attend the second annual meeting of the Associated Publishers of Commercial Periodicals. The association includes such concerns as the Pittsburgh Drygoods Company, the H. J. Heinz Company, the Logan-Gregg Hardware Company, the R. W. Jenkinson Company and other members scattered all over the United States. The purpose of the association at present is to make a united effort to secure a reduction of postal rates for regularly issued publications. Mr. Mitchell represents all of the local firms, whose aggregate monthly papers have a circulation of nearly 200,000 and represent an annual business of $10,000,000.

Neighbors Visiting Pittsburgh.

At the leading hotels last night the following visitors from nearby towns were registered:

THE DEATH ROLL.

Frank R. Stockton.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—(Special.)—Frank R. Stockton, the author of many delightful books and an American man of letters who had a sure place high in the esteem of lovers of good stories, died in this city today of hemorrhage of the brain in his 68th year. He had been ill since Wednesday evening, when he was suddenly attacked at a dinner at the Arlington hotel, given by Prof. Agassiz to the American Academy of Science. There was no premonition of the sudden illness. He had been in his usual state of health and was on his way to Claymont, his country place at Charleston, W. Va., in anticipation of many pleasant months, and in expectation of continuing his literary work. For years it had been his custom to stay in Washington for a month at the time of year on his way south, and last week he came as usual with Mrs. Stockton and her sister, Miss Lurtell of Virginia. At the dinner on Wednesday night he sat quietly conversing with a friend, when he was taken with paralysis, and Dr. A. R. Sands was hastily summoned. The paralysis was found to be the result of a slight hemorrhage of the brain and nothing serious was feared. Mr. Stockton was removed to his room in the hotel where he remained until yesterday morning, when, in order to have more quietness, he was taken to the home of L. R. Finney, an old family friend on P street. Meanwhile he seemed to be rapidly recovering and was taking the usual nourishment of convalescent. His good spirits, too, had returned, and he made plans for the coming months. Suddenly, at 8:15 o'clock this morning, he was seized with a second and more serious hemorrhage of the brain, and became unconscious. He died at 11 o'clock, surrounded by his family and friends, without regaining consciousness. The great shock had almost completely prostrated Mrs. Stockton. Mr. Stockton has a brother living in Philadelphia, William Stockton, who arrived in this city this afternoon. The body will be taken to Philadelphia for interment. No further funeral arrangements have been made as yet. Many calls and notes of condolence were received at the Finney home today when the sad news of Mr. Stockton's demise became known. Mr. Stockton passed the winter in New York. He was in good health, but preferring to take a rest, he did little literary work. A month ago he went to Atlantic City, where he remained until he came to Washington. Mr. Stockton was a Philadelphian by birth, and in early life was an engraver and draughtsman, but soon abandoned this occupation for journalism. Many years ago, however, he retired wholly from newspaper work and devoted himself to literature. His reputation as a story writer was world-wide.

Mrs. Catharine Faulkner.

Mrs. Catharine Faulkner, one of the oldest residents of Manchester, Allegheny, died Saturday morning in the 92d year of her age. Mrs. Faulkner was born in 1810 along the river bank of the Allegheny, at a point now embraced in the Fifth ward of Allegheny. She had been seriously ill for five days previous to her demise. For several years past she made her home with her son George at No. 1926 Manhattan street, where she died. Her maiden name was Dornelly. A story is told that on the day of her birth the rivers rose so rapidly that the family had to move. The baby was placed in a wicker basket and carried over a flood four feet deep. Her husband died 31 years ago. She is survived by five daughters and two sons, as follows: Mrs. James Kaufmann, Mrs. Melvina Dunn, Mrs. William Hart, Mrs. Silas Jones, Miss Eliza Faulkner and George and Frank Faulkner.

Col. Charles Marshall.

BALTIMORE, MD., April 20.—Col. Charles Marshall, military secretary of Gen. Robert E. Lee during the civil war, and for many years one of the leaders of the Baltimore bar, died of apoplexy at his home here late last night. He was born October 9, 1830, at Winchester, Va. His father was a nephew of Chief Justice John Marshall. Col. Marshall became a member of Gen. Lee's staff in 1862, and was attached to him throughout the war. He was the only member of the general's staff present when he signed him at the surrender at Appomattox, and the terms of surrender were drafted by him. For a long time Col. Marshall was engaged on a military history of Gen. Lee's campaign, but was unable to finish it. He was prominent in Democratic politics in Maryland. He leaves a widow, four sons and a daughter.

Maj. James B. Steen.

Maj. James B. Steen died late Saturday night at his home, No. 271 Shady avenue, in his 53d year. Maj. Steen was born near Carnegie and was the son of the late David Steen, a well-known coal operator. He was in business with his father and until his retirement five years ago with his brother, W. J. Steen of Bridgeville. About 20 years ago he was captain of Company B, Eighteenth regiment, N. G. P., and retired with the brevet rank of major. Maj. Steen came to Pittsburgh when a young man and 25 years ago he served two terms as common councilman from the Second ward. He afterward removed to the Steen homestead near Carnegie and returned to Pittsburgh with his family last September. His first wife was Miss Emma Lappe, by whom he had one child, Mrs. J. W. Abbey; his second wife was Miss Jennie Calhoun, who survives him and by whom he had six children, four of whom, Misses Mary, Margaret, Marietta and Catherine and one son, William, are living. Maj. Steen was a member of Minnor lodge, No. 287, E. and A. M.

William R. Elliott.

STEUBENVILLE, O., April 20.—(Special.)—William R. Elliott, one of the pioneer ironmasters of this valley, died here today, aged 82 years. He was born at Lancaster, Pa., and his father, the Rev. John Elliott, at his death was pastor of the old Fifth Street Methodist Protestant church in Pittsburgh. Mr. Elliott had been connected with the Labelle Company since its organization in 1853, and but one other of the 24 original stockholders survives. He was connected with the Jefferson iron works here from its organization.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stewart.

NEW CASTLE, PA., April 20.—(Special.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Stewart, aged 76 years, a lifelong resident of Lawrence county, died here at midnight at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. F. McClelland. She leaves two sons and two daughters, the Rev. James Stewart, missionary to Lalakia, Syria; Prof. James Stewart of New York; Mrs. S. B. McClelland of this city and Mrs. Nannie Keys of Russelvania, Ohio.

Henry Beeson Maclean.

WASHINGTON, PA., April 20.—(Special.)—Henry Beeson Maclean, one of the oldest residents of Washington, died at the home of his son-in-law, Dr. J. T. Scott, on East Maiden street, this morning, aged 80 years. He was a native of Washington county, and was an active Republican, occupying the office of county commissioner from 1867 to 1870. He also held other county offices. He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. Scott of this place.

J. J. Harding.

GREENSBURG, PA., April 20.—(Special.)—J. J. Harding of this place was stricken with apoplexy at noon today and death resulted almost immediately. Mr. Harding was engaged in the carriage manufacturing business for many years. He was about 50 years of age, and leaves a widow and two daughters.

Obituary Notes.

Mrs. Elisabeth McCully, aged 67, died yesterday at her home, No. 251 Fifth avenue, Pennsylvania.

William Woods died yesterday at his home, No. 3250 Bonnet street. Funeral services will be held at the house tomorrow afternoon.

Miss Rosy C. Loomis, daughter of Reuben N. Loomis, died yesterday at her father's home in Steuben avenue, Crafton. She was 20 years old.

Mrs. Alexander Gordon, aged 55 years, died at her home in Ann street, Homestead, yesterday morning after a short illness. She is survived by her husband and five children.

DIED IN A SALOON.

Suspicious Ending of a Man Who Claimed Relationship With Canon Farrar of England.

NEW YORK, April 20.—(Special.)—One who claimed relationship to Canon Farrar of England, and who bore the family name of the eminent ecclesiastic, died miserably last night in a saloon in Park row, which is frequented by the flotsam of humanity. The coroner tomorrow will complete the investigation of the death of John Farrar by holding an autopsy. So far no evidence of violence has been found, although the police are making a rigid investigation in view of the fact that Farrar was the third man within a year to die in the saloon.

Although Farrar was a slave to drink he was mild-mannered and inoffensive. In an atmosphere of profanity and vulgarity he was never known to utter a profane or indecent word. He was employed first or last in almost every restaurant where, as a messenger boy and as dish-washer, he eked out slender wages, which he spent for drink. Now that he is dead, his friends have demanded that all the facts with regard to his death be investigated.

Going a Little Too Far.

THE MAN UP A TREE

The Colonel's Indignation.

"Yes, sah," continued the colonel from Kentucky, "I have been reading of the watah cure, sah, administered to Filipinos by certain officers of the United States army, sah, and I am unable to express my sentiments adequately, sah, without resorting to wahm language, sah. I haven't the slightest doubt, sah, that the recalcitrant natives needed some sort of urgiug, sah, to compel them to disclose infawmation needed by our troops, sah, but the use of watah as the the instrument, sah, is more than I can condone. The constitution forbids cruel and unusual punishments, sah, and if it is not cruel to fawce poor wretches to take watah, sah, I am at a loss to know what could come under that designation, sah. The watah cure! Bah! It turns my stomach and makes my blood boil, sah!"

Then the colonel tossed off the contents of his glass, which was perfectly innocent of water.

BETTER SERVICE FOR LESS MONEY IS THE PROGRAM

Morgan Will Introduce Economies in Trans-Atlantic Traffic.

NEW SAILING SCHEDULE

Clement A. Griscom, President of the International Navigation Co., Outlines the Plans of the New Combination of Steamship Lines.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Philadelphia, April 20.—Clement A. Griscom, president of the International Navigation Company, one of the five transatlantic steamship companies which have been merged under the direction of J. P. Morgan, today talked freely concerning the consolidation, its purposes and probable effects. Mr. Griscom said he was unable to speak definitely regarding the financial plan, as that was a matter for the consideration of Mr. Morgan and his partners, which will perhaps be decided upon within the next two weeks. In any event, President Griscom said, the consolidated companies would probably be in operation under the new conditions within a few months.

Negotiations Are Complete.

So far as the negotiations regarding the merger are concerned they have been completed. Agreements for a controlling interest in each of the various lines have been secured, and all that now remains to be accomplished is the organization of the holding or parent company. This matter is now in the hands of J. P. Morgan & Co. and their lawyers.

It is possible, though by no means certain, that the International Navigation Company, whose chartered powers are very broad, will be made the parent company. The question now under consideration is the desirability of this plan as against the organization of an entirely new company to control the operations of the combined steamship lines.

The published statements as to the financial basis of the combine, Mr. Griscom said, were entirely speculative, as that detail had not as yet been completed.

One Detail Unfinished.

"The capitalization of the consolidated companies," said Mr. Griscom, "will be in the neighborhood of $230,000,000, which sum about represents the property absorbed. Working capital, of course, will be provided, and the profits and reserve fund should enable us to build the necessary additions to our fleets. While control of the company will be held in this country, it will be a strictly international organization, fostering the various companies included in the consolidation, preserving their autonomy and respecting their national and local surroundings.

Better Service at Less Cost.

"The object of the combination," continued Mr. Griscom, "is to try to give better transatlantic service at a decreased cost. Heretofore the trade has been extravagantly conducted and we propose to operate more intelligently in the future. We expect in time to inaugurate a system of daily departures from New York, an innovation that is a real necessity.

"There is no political significance in this deal. The negotiations have covered a period of many years, and I was interested in the subject as far back as 1864. The passage of the ship subsidy bill would have but one effect, so far as the new enterprise is concerned."

Effect of Subsidy Bill.

"It would enable us to sell ships now building and hereafter built under the American flag on an equal footing with the ships of other countries. The published statements that the ship subsidy bill would enable us to sell our foreign vessels under the stars and stripes are incorrect, as the bill specifically states that only American built ships can benefit by its provisions, and, furthermore, such a course, if possible, is contrary to the whole scheme.

"We have existing only four small vessels that might benefit by the passage of this bill, and they are on the Pacific. While in the coastwise trade, in which they are now engaged, the provisions of the bill would not apply to them.

Published Statements Denied.

After our present mail contract expires the four American transatlantic liners of the International Navigation Company are eligible for a new contract, either under the present postal law or under any new act that might be passed by congress."

Mr. Griscom denied the published statement that Liverpool would be abandoned as a passenger port. He said that question had not been discussed.

"Every port," he said, "will be developed along the lines to which each port is best adapted. We will establish an economic and sensible management."

Trans-Shipments Avoided.

Mr. Griscom said it was possible the company would carry its own insurance. "The consolidation," declared Mr. Griscom, "will result in better transatlantic service, steadier and more uniform rates, a just distribution of traffic over all American and Canadian seaports, increased lines on the Pacific and services to South America as traffic may be found to justify them. Having lines between Great Britain and Australia and New Zealand, and intimate connections with the far east, American manufacturers will be able to distribute their products on through bills of lading and avoid the expense of trans-shipments which they now incur.

Economies Will Be Introduced.

"The products of the farm will be shipped from the seaport most convenient to the point of production. In a word, it is intended to reduce transportation charges as far as possible to every one; to improve facilities, and the company expects to make its increased profits over the conditions of the past from economical management.

"To what extent these new services will be conducted by steamships built in this country and sailed under the American flag depends upon congress."

BREWERY DAMAGED.

Christian Moerlein Plant at Cincinnati Suffers From Fire.

CINCINNATI, April 20.—The large brewery of the Christian Moerlein Company, at Elm and McMicken streets, was damaged more than $100,000 by fire today, supposed to be due to spontaneous combustion. The entire fire department was engaged for four hours in getting the fire under control.

Andrew Moerlein was seriously injured by falling from his buggy on his way to the fire. Richard Porter and Jack O'Keefe, both firemen, were badly injured while on duty.

Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant certainly does go directly to the root of all Throat and Lung troubles. There is abundant evidence of this in its sixty-two years' record of cures.

Marbusek & Son pianos, famous for 60 years. Alex Ross Piano Company, 714 Penn avenue.

CLINGING GRACEFUL ETAMINE GOWN.

The really artistic dress here shown is among the best things that Paquin has sent to this country. It is so simple in its outline, so practical in its construction, and yet so striking in its novel application of its trimmings, that every woman will appreciate its presence in the style.

PRISCILLA'S PENCIL

Takes pleasure in recording the return of white drapery for dressing mirrors and bedrooms in general. The simplest rooms may be made dainty by such fittings and the home-made dressing-table, with its white coverings, is prettier by far than the more "furniture" affairs which are bought ready for use. A pretty one built by a Pittsburgh girl who lately returned from college and has all manner of college ideas in her fingers has an oak towel ring suspended over the oval mirror, and from this ring depend two long ends of fresh white mull, ruffled along the edge with very narrow ruffles and draped so as to simply outline the mirror. There is an art in this white drapery too, above and beyond that which is for appearance alone. The white light cast on the glass gives vividness and color to the reflection and shows the owner more nearly as she appears to other eyes, when in full daylight, than is ever possible with the undraped mirror.

For the Bureau Drawer—

Neat maidens are making pretty linings of cardboard fitted with several compartments and covered with some daintily figured cretonne or dimity. One I saw the other day has a circular space for linen collars and stocks, a square compartment for ribbons and a long one for gloves. The dividing walls are made of cardboard, stiched or glued in position, after being smoothly covered with the figured covering.

White Waists—

Of white lace over satin or silk are made now to accompany afternoon gowns of lightweight broadcloth or the sheer summer cloths. These waists, after being made all in white, are strapped across or down with narrow straps of the color of the skirt. The straps are fastened to the waist or wrist band with fancy buttons, and are exceedingly Frenchy and smart in effect.

The Handkerchief Night Dress—

Bids fair to be in highest favor this summer. It is simply made in gown fashion with low neck and no sleeves. Two fancy handkerchiefs are then cut so that the corners may form a sort of bib about the neck and a handkerchief is taken for each sleeve, open in a narrow space at the front of the arm.

The Fancy Medallion Buckles—

Are in supreme favor in Paris for use on summer belts and a single pair of these handsomely set will do service for any number of belts. The crush belts of fancy ribbon are best liked and may be worn with wash gowns for any and every occasion.

Dainty Black and White Gown.

Saw a dainty black and white gown at the opera the other night. It seemed modeled on one recently worn by Minnie Maddern Fiske in Pittsburgh, though of evening materials. It was of white crepe lisse, embroidered here and there with black dots as large as a three-cent piece. This was made over a white silk slip and was trimmed with long bands of black Chantilly lace, set on so that they were perpendicular at the back of the skirt, though wreathing across the front. A girdle of turquoise blue velvet gave a Frenchy touch and as the sleeves were of elbow length, white suede gloves were worn and these were daintily embroidered about the top with blue figures.

Bonbonnaires—

Are as much in favor with sweet toothed femininity as ever and a dainty conceit of this sort shown by a local jeweler is a golf bag in the original tartan, with a group of sticks forming a handle by which the hinged lid may be lifted, to disclose sweet morsels within. Another unique affair just brought from Paris by an Allegheny girl who spent the winter there is a tiny hat box, such as Englishmen all carry, but of metal and small enough to be covered by the open hand. This opens in the regulation fashion and is supposed to be filled with sweet scented lozenges.

To Be Fashionable—

You positively must wear loose-wristed gloves this summer. The thicker and heavier they are the better, and rumor has it that even the loosely buttoned wrists are not baggy enough for Dame Fashion, but that the old Blaritz style will be renewed before the month is out.

CURRENT MODES.

That a white summer is just ahead of us is past all query—the verification is at hand in everything that a woman wears.

Many costumees are shown in which not a colored thread appears, including stockings and shoes.

Never were white fabrics so perfectly exquisite and so sumptuous in silk, satin, velvet, and cotton. Plain materials have the most fascinating texture ever, every thread daintily wven.

Lovely white gowns are made of crepe de chine, combined with lace, net, or chiffon. A costume of this kind recently from Paris has a waist made with a back tucked lengthwise and closely fitted. The fronts are made open over a full vest of chiffon, with a foundation of Liberty satin. The fronts have a cluster of lengthwise tucks near the edge, which is finished with Valenciennes lace two inches wide gathered over a fluted frill of chiffon, edged with very narrow Valenciennes. From the neck to the waistline and beyond the tucks motifs of Irish lace are inserted in the fronts, skillfully done at the edges with knotted hemstitching. The sleeves have a lower detachable portion of Irish lace, finished at the waist with a white Liberty satin cuff, embroidered in white silk floss and flecked with tiny Roman pearls. The collar is of tucked chiffon over white Liberty satin.

The skirt is in seven gores, with tucked strappings of Liberty satin. The border is finished with three flounces, edged with Valenciennes lace. At intervals these flowers are embellished at the top edge with a cluster of white-ribbon loops, these clusters alternating in the succession of flounces.

This gown may be worn with a low front by substituting a detachable front cut off at the bust line.

A blue hat is trimmed only with black velvet ribbon, a big bow of it at the back, with ends falling around the crown to the front, concealing a point of the velvet, held in place by a handsome antique-looking buckle with a large pearl in it.

"Ocean" is one of the new shades; it is a greeny blue.

Particularly fashionable are the small flowers in millinery.

The fashionable weddings of the week have brought out a notable number of artistic velvet gowns.

Straw hats worn with furs have been frequently seen combinations on Chestnut street this week.

Sloping shoulders are correct this spring. Everything in the way of trimming contributes to this effect.

Cream bengaline is fashionable for shirt waists to be worn with tailor gowns. Odd waists of sky-blue satin veiled with black Chantilly are favored by smartly dressed Parisiennes.

HOUSEKEEPERS' NOTEBOOK.

Grease stains on marble may be treated in this manner: Dissolve a quarter of a pound of concentrated lye in half a pint of cold water; add to this enough whiting and fuller's earth—half of each—to make a thick paste. Spread a thick layer on the grease stain. Let it remain for several days, then brush off. If any trace of the stain remains wet the dry mixture with boiling water and put on another layer of the paste.

To remove ink stains—The removal of ink stains is always a problem, because inks are made by so many processes. Soap and water will remove some inks, while strong chemicals make little impression on others. The sooner the stain is treated the more easily it is removed. Washing and soaking in cold water or in sweet or sour milk will remove the greater part of the ink and frequently the stain. Spots on washable articles should be soaked in milk or water. Rub the spot and change the liquid frequently. After two or three days, if a stain remains, wet with a strong solution of oxalic acid and place in the sun. After this rinse very thoroughly.

To restore the color of worn places in carpets, get a small box of water colors. Select a color to match that which you wish to restore. If you have not the right shade combine colors to produce it. Use enough water to make the coloring liquid very thin. Apply with a brush.

Paraffine wax in starch is frequently employed to give a brilliant finish to the starched article and also to prevent the iron from sticking. Add a piece the size of a walnut to the boiling starch.

Ammonia and powdered borax in warm water should be used frequently for washing toilet sponges. A sponge should never be used unless it be sweet and clean. After washing it, dry in the air and sunshine.

Instead of the mechanical adjustments for holding the so-called pillow shams in place, these covers, which make beautiful the pillows during the daytime, are now supplied with an extra backing of muslin, converting them into actual cases to be drawn on over the pillows.

It is common enough thing to have a bureau drawer hitch and catch in opening or closing. Nine persons out of ten will go on for years accommodating themselves to the drawer. The tenth and wise person will do some simple thing to overcome the difficulty.

Even so unpretentious an article as soap has been known to answer the purpose when rubbed on those parts of the drawer that fit too snugly. The soap should also be applied to the under part of the slide.

Guests Pass With Glaciers.

Hotel-keepers in the Alps have a new trouble and are complaining at the loss of patrons, who are moving away from the glaciers. Yes, the attractive glaciers are actually passing from the landscape, and as they recede the hotels along the borders find that their registers are shortening.

These glaciers are not running away by any means, but they are deteriorating slowly, with a persistency that means their final annihilation. Hotels that a few years ago stood near a great river of slowly moving ice now find themselves a considerable distance away and the attractiveness of the site is lessened.

The famous glaciers of the Rhone have shrunk 3,000 feet in the last 20 years, or about 110 feet a year. A number of the well-known glaciers approximate this diminution, and the scientific fact is established that these reminders of the great glacial period are surely disappearing.

A Natural Question.

Mrs. Hoon (in the midst of her reading)—Ah! Mrs. Congressman Swackhammer has started a crusade against decollete gowns.

Mr. Hoon—H'm! Is Mrs. Congressman Swackhammer sensible or skinny?—Smart Set.

"Ha! ha!" laughed Funnycus, "a joke!" "Ha! ha!" laughed his audience, "what is it?"

"Ha! ha! a joke!"—Smart Set.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 20.—Pittsburgh's champion baseball team took the third and last game of the series from Pat Donovan's St. Louis Cardinals at League park this afternoon by a score of 10 to 2. Tannehill, for the visitors, pitched a magnificent game throughout, and his support was of the gilt-edged order.

The game was witnessed by about $15,000 people, and the crowd rooted hard for Donovan's men, but it was all to no avail. The game was lost by St. Louis through errors and poor team work in the first three innings, when the Pirates scored seven runs.

Wicker, for the Cardinals, pitched a fairly good game, but his support was ragged and caused the new St. Louis twirler to lose heart. Hartman, Donovan's third baseman, is playing in poor form and the fans are anxious for his release. Oom Paul Kruger, who is trying to fill the shoes of Rhody Wallace at short, is not succeeding as well as was expected.

Crowd Was Large.

The crowd at today's game was so large that the grandstand would not accommodate all the people and several hundred persons were compelled to stand in centerfield.

Davis opened the game with a hit. Clarke flew out to Barclay. Beaumont hit to Wicker, who threw him out nicely at first, and Wagner died on a long hit to Smoot.

Farrell, for St. Louis, went out. Wagner to first; Barclay died, Leach to Bransfield; Hartman was hit by pitcher; Smoot sent out to Ritchey, who threw him out at first.

Pittsburgh opened up in the second by scoring two runs on three errors and Leach's triple. Bransfield had gone out when the run of the second began. Ritchey hit a hot one to Kruger, which he fumbled. Leach's three-bagger scored Ritchey. Zimmer hit to Wicker, who juggled the ball long enough to permit Leach to score. When he finally threw the ball to first, Hazleton muffed it and Zimmer went on to second, Kruger muffing Hazleton's throw. Davis died out to Smoot and Clarke died, pitcher to first.

Cardinals Retired in Order.

St. Louis retired in one, two, three order. Tannehill being a tough nut. Beaumont opened up with a clean hit over short; Wagner bunted to Farrell, who fumbled it and Wagner was safe. Bransfield made a beautiful slow bunt to Kruger and all runners were safe.

With the bases full, Ritchey hit a hot one to Hartman, who fumbled the ball and Beaumont scored. Leach hit to Kruger, who gathered himself together and threw Wagner out at the plate. With the bases still full, Zimmer lined out a pretty one over third and Bransfield and Ritchey scored. Tannehill walked; Davis flew out to Hazleton; Clarke's hit brought in Leach and Zimmer, but Clarke was thrown out at second trying to stretch his hit into a double.

Three more men faced Tannehill in the third. Three Pirates sent hot ones to Kruger at short, and he retired them all by perfect throwing.

St. Louis' First Hit.

The fifth saw St. Louis' first hit, a double by Donovan to left field. Hazleton sacrificed and St. Louis should have scored, but Ryan flew out to Clarke and Wicker struck out for the second time.

In the sixth three hits by Tannehill, Davis and Beaumont brought in one run. After this Wicker settled down to steady work and Tannehill's error in the ninth, when one man was out and one on base, Pittsburgh might have been retired with no more runs.

As it was Barclay fumbled Leach's short hit, and then kicked both scoring before he recovered the ball. Wicker ran up in front of Ryan and muffed the ball at the plate.

Donovan's Team Scores.

St. Louis' two runs were made in the sixth inning. Farrell bunted along the third base line and Leach allowed the ball to roll, thinking it was foul. The sphere rolled inside the line just at the bag. Barclay sacrificed, Wagner to first, the decision at the initial bag being very close.

Hartman singled, but was forced at second by Smoot's hit to Leach. Smoot stole second and came home on Kruger's pretty single. Only five hits were made off Tannehill, and he struck out four men.

REDS WIN THE LAST.

In a Close and Exciting Game Brush's Team Defeated Chicago in Seventh.

CINCINNATI, April 20.—The Cincinnati team won the final game of the series from Chicago. The game was the best of the four, and it was anybody's victory up to the last man in the last inning.

Phillips and Ewing both pitched superb ball, only six hits being made off the former and seven off the latter. Chicago made four errors but they did not count against them in any extent. Both teams played good ball. Attendance, 13,000. Score:

TERRY MAY SPAR.

Ex-Lightweight Champion Likely to Go On for Four Rounds at Millvale.

The lovers of boxing in this section are promised a good thing at the Millvale baseball grounds tonight when Hughey McGovern, a brother of Terrible Terry, and Frank McCloskey meet. Besides pulling off several preliminaries the promoters of the affair announced last night that Louden Campbell may spar four rounds with Terry.

Young McGovern arrived in Pittsburgh with his sparring partner, Joe Humphries, yesterday, and Terry will get in this morning. Both McCloskey and McGovern are in good shape and the fight ought to be a good exhibition. Tim Hurst will referee the mill.

New Castle's Team Selected.

NEW CASTLE, PA., April 20.—(Special.)—Manager J. B. Dennis of the New Castle Athletics has selected the following baseball team for the season: Keenan, short stop; Crum, third base; Musgrave, second base; Asbury, first base; Daugherty, left field; Trushel, middle field; Ulrich, catcher; Lanigan, pitcher, and Dennis, right field.

BALDWIN'S COLT BACKED TO WIN AMERICAN DERBY

Lucky Californian's Cruzados Being Heavily Played in the Books.

ODDS TWELVE TO ONE

Reported That Over $22,000 Has Been Wagered on the Horse—Bets Recorded for the Brooklyn Handicap and Suburban.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Ill., April 20.—There is evidently something doing out in California. Cruzados, according to reports, has been backed for the American derby as if "Lucky" Baldwin's horse had already swept under the wire winner.

The report from California is to the effect that the Baldwin stable has been backing the colt in the future books with a vengeance.

James O'Leary is willing to confirm the report and says that he has laid $22,500 against $1,500 on the chances of Cruzados during the past week.

Cruzados is now quoted at 12 to 1 in O'Leary's winter book and is on even terms with McChesney and Runnells. Abe Frank is still 7 to 1, and $1,000, it is reported, has been wagered on his chances at these odds during the week.

The "bunch" is supposed to have come from Memphis, but George C. Bennett's name has not been mentioned in its connection.

Since Abe Frank's race in the Tennessee derby there has been less enthusiasm about him, and it is now conceded that Bennett's colt does not necessarily have a mortgage on the blue ribbon event. The following bets are reported to have been made in O'Leary's book:

AMERICAN DERBY.

Great Preparation Is Being Made for Races at Philadelphia Next Saturday and Also for the Interscholastic Field Meet at Schenley Park.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

SALTSBURG, PA., April 20.—All other branches of athletics have been lost sight of here for the present in preparation of the runners for the competition in the Philadelphia relay races, under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania next Saturday.

The relay runners have improved greatly during the last 10 days, during which the school track has been available. The first four are going under 90 seconds and expect to make better time on the faster track at Philadelphia.

Leading Candidates.

The leading candidates, with the time they have made so far for the quarter, are as follows: Capt. Waite, 58 seconds; Breniser, 61; Long, 62; McClintock, 61; Gibbens, 61; Ramage, 60; Corbet, 60, and Clayton, 59½.

Kiski will be strongly represented in the Schenley park field meet on May 31 and hopes to retain the championship won at Washington last year with the strong total of 61 points to Shadyside's 32 for second place.

Kiski is especially strong in the pole vault and runs.

Baseball Prospects Bright.

Baseball prospects were never brighter, the team being especially strong on the rubber and giving every indication so far of meeting all requirements with the willow. Two of the pitchers will be used as regular members of the team, probably in the outfield. The outfield has not been decided on yet and there are many candidates, McKallip, McClintock, Yeaney and Parker being the leading ones.

Members of the baseball team who will compete in the Pittsburgh field meet are William McLane, the star pitcher, who will enter in the sprints, hurdles and shot-put; McClintock in the 220-dash and the quarter mile; Clayson in the sprints; Porterfield in the broad jump and pole vault; McKallip in the runs; Ramage in the sprints and Yeaney in the pole vault and jumps.

QUARTER MILE CYCLE RECORD WAS BROKEN

National Champion Frank Kramer Made a New World's Mark at Valisburg Track.

NEWARK, N. J., April 20.—The estimated number of persons at the Valisburg cycle track today was 8,000. The feature of the day was the quarter-mile flying start for professionals. It was won by the national champion, Frank Kramer, in 28 2-5 seconds. This creates a new world's record. The old record was made by Jay A. I. Brown of Decatur, Ill., October 13, 1894.

In the five-mile handicap for professionals both the national and the five-mile champions were beaten. Kramer took the lead with the bell, but in the home stretch Fenn, the five-mile champion, overhauled him, and McFarland, coming in just behind, managed to beat them both out by a few inches.

"Teddy" Billington rode under the colors of the New York Athletic club for the first time. His teammates will be Hurley and the Welsing brothers.

Half mile (amateur)—Won by "Teddy" Billington, Vallsburg; A. A. Courter, Newark, second; George Gilsson, Newark, third; Charles Sebben, Newark, fourth. Time, 1:21.

Quarter mile (professional)—Won by Frank Kramer, East Orange; F. A. McFarland, San Jose, second; W. S. Fenn, Bristol, third. Time, 30 4-5. Old record, 28 4-5.

Five-mile handicap (professional)—Won by F. A. McFarland, San Jose (scratch); W. S. Fenn, Bristol (scratch), second; W. A. Rutz, New Haven (200 yards), third; Frank Kramer, East Orange (scratch), fourth. Time, 11:46.

One-mile handicap (amateur)—Won by R. Jefferson, New York (100 yards); Joseph Foster, Brooklyn (120 yards), second; A. Boyerman, New York (60 yards), third. Time, 2:06 2-5.

TEAM CHESS TOURNEY.

Correspondence Match by Brooklyn and Chicago Experts Begins Today.

NEW YORK, APRIL 20.—The monster team chess correspondence match between 116 Brooklyn players and an equal number of players from Chicago will begin tomorrow.

The Brooklyn players are all drawn from Kings and Queens counties and play under the auspices of the Brooklyn Chess club, while the Chicago men are drawn from Cook and Dupage counties and play under the auspices of the Pillsbury correspondence chess associations.

Walter Penn Shipley of the Franklin Chess club, Philadelphia, will act as referee, while Dr. S. F. King of Brooklyn and Charles W. Phillips of Chicago are chairmen of the respective sides. Each set plays one game only.

American League Team Lost.

CHICAGO, April 20.—The Milwaukee American association team defeated the Chicago American league nine here today by a score of 3 to 2.

Among the Amateurs.

The Monarch Athletic club baseball team of Wilkinsburg has reorganized and will be seen with the following players: Snyder, catcher; Smelts, McGuigan, pitchers; Schilling, first base; Russell, second base; Porr, third base; M. Adams, left field; R. Adams, center field; Opperman, right field; Gilmore, sub.

The Young Susman Stars defeated the Imperials by a score of 16 to 11. For games, all 11- to 12-year-old teams write Frank Skirble, 143 Washington street, Pittsburgh.

The Woodlake A. C. team will be chosen from the following list of players: Bradley, Thorn, Miller, Wilson, Nos. Diemer, Irwin, Jenkins, McKenry, Henry, Willis, Buerger and Ely. Strong amateur teams desiring games, such as Windsors, High School, Charlerol and Tarentum, are requested to address manager of Woodlake A. C., Box No. 2, Station A, Pittsburgh.

The Deadman's Curve Athletic club of Allegheny would like to hear from all clubs under 18 years of age.

The C. M. Kellys would like to arrange games with all out-of-town teams. Sewickley, Economy, Leechdale, Beaver Falls preferred. Address E. Donley, 1822 Franklin st., Allegheny.

Disordered Stomach

Carlsbad Sprudel Salt is an effective remedy for disordered stomach, dyspepsia, biliousness, etc. It cleanses the system, clears the complexion, and purifies the blood. It is a positive cure for constipation, catarrh of the stomach, liver and kidney complaints, diabetes, etc.

THE PHILIPPINE ISLAND MATTERS WILL BE AIRED

Senate Probably Will Spend Three Weeks on Temporary Government Bill.

RIVERS WILL COME FIRST

That Measure Will Have Easy and Quick Sailing in Upper Branch. Anti-Anarchy and Omnibus Public Buildings in the Lower House.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., April 20.—The senate will begin the week by taking up the river and harbor appropriation bill tomorrow, and when that measure is disposed of will resume consideration of the Philippine government bill.

It is not expected that much time will be required to get the river and harbor bill through the senate, as it is generally approved by senators. Senator Frye, chairman of the committee on commerce, who has charge of the bill, today expressed the opinion that there would be no debate on the bill and that it would pass as soon as it could be read.

It is now understood that Senator Rawlins, senior Democratic member of the senate committee on the Philippines, will lead off in the speech-making in opposition to the Philippine bill, to be followed by other members of the committee and other Democratic senators. The opinion is expressed that the bill be before the senate for at least three weeks.

In the house of representatives there is a prospect that some important general legislation may be taken up during the latter part of the week. Tomorrow will be devoted to District of Columbia business, Tuesday to war claims and Wednesday to the oleomargarine bill which was amended by the senate.

During the remaining days of the week it is practically settled that the anti-Anarchist bill of Chairman Ray of the judiciary committee will be considered. The measure is much more stringent than the anti-Anarchist bill passed by the senate.

Plans also are on foot for considering the omnibus public building bill during the latter days of the week. This measure has not been reported from the house committee on bills and grounds, but it probably will be completed early in this week, so that it can be taken up later in the week. Beyond this no exact program has been arranged.

NEXT RECIPROCITY MOVE.

Everything Now Depends Upon What the Administration Side Will do in the Matter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—(Special.)—On the question of Cuban reciprocity, so far as the senate is concerned, everything rests on a plan yet to be formed by the president and administration senators.

It is admitted on all sides today that at present there are only four members of the committee of eleven on relations with Cuba who are in favor of reporting an out-and-out tariff reduction bill. These senators are Platt of Connecticut, Aldrich, Cullom and Burnham. The Republican senators at present opposed are McMillan, Spooner and Dubois. The Democratic members of the committee will oppose the reporting of any bill that does not include the amendment removing the differential. These are Teller, Money, Taliaferro and Simmons.

Senator Teller's resolution is now pending in this committee, and he will urge its report to the senate early and late. It is said today that this resolution has as good a chance of favorable action as any bill providing for reciprocity.

Warmer Weather Promised.

The United States weather bureau predicts a continuation of yesterday's spring weather, the forecast reading: "Weather generally fair, slightly warmer, with possible showers. The lowest temperature in Pittsburgh yesterday was 50 degrees at 7:30 a. m., and the highest 67, at 4:30 p. m. Omaha, Platte and Dodge City, all on the western prairies, were the hottest places on the weather map, with 92 degrees.

CHRIST'S LESSON TO NICODEMUS IS TOLD AGAIN

Sermon of Dr. Scrimger at Euclid Ave. Reformed Presbyterian Church.

CHANGE MUST BE RADICAL

The Spirit's Action May Be Used to Aid Men in Their Daily Work if It Is Studied in the Proper Way. Comparisons in Nature.

The Rev. Dr. John Scrimger.

The Rev. Dr. John Scrimger of Montreal, Canada, a member of the joint committee of the Canadian and American church which is revising the metrical system of the Psalms, preached yesterday morning in the Euclid Avenue Reformed Presbyterian church from the text, "The wind bloweth where it listeth," John III.:8.

"'Tis written," he said, "that every man that would enter the kingdom of heaven must be born again. Not only must he be washed clean, but he must be born again unto God. He must be cut off from the things that kept him bound to the earth. And how shall he do it? Who shall be his guide, and who his solace when the spirit knocketh at the door of his soul and commands him to arise from the lethargy of sin? The wind bloweth where it listeth, and so the spirit of God only can bring back the soul to a realization of its former self.

Lesson of Nicodemus.

"This driving out of the vile that is within comes only from God. It is wrought by the spirit of God. Nicodemus knew as much, but he had it from Christ Himself. He desired to know more. There were some things he could not quite understand. He wanted to know how certain things could be. The answer is, 'The wind bloweth where it listeth.' It is a natural one and an instructive one. First, it conveyed a lesson of the incomprehensibleness of the spirit's action. We of ourselves know not when it will act on how. We do know, however, that the spirit of God does not act by compulsion. Man may resist the invitations of the Spirit, but will, eventually, not only welcome it coming, but in turn invite, nay cry out for God and his spirit to come upon him, into him.

Comparisons in Nature.

"The iceberg is hard and menacing to navigation; the kindly sun bursts upon it and it melts away into the kindred waters of the ocean. And so, to, does the spirit of God make a change in man when it enters.

Secondly, the spirit's action is beyond human control. God is bountiful in the bestowal of his graces, but not capricious.

"This might seem to destroy human responsibility, but it really does not, for the main thought suggested by the text is that if we study the action of the spirit's action we may count upon its operation even as the sailor may use the wind which he must control to carry his ship across the broad expanse, or the builder of a windmill make it do the work he desires.

Step Must be Radical.

"We know how God's spirit reaches us through the sermon from the pulpit. Some thought awakens anew the desire for higher things. It is the spirit entreating us to follow. Then let us see to it that we cut loose from everything that will hinder our progress spiritually.

"The nation may be filled to the neck with gas and every artificial device prepared to assure its ascent, but so long as there is a single cable binding it to earth, so long shall it be found light and its desires to be away will be unavailing. It cannot rise. It cannot enter its natural state. So, too, the spirit may strive within us, but so long as sin binds us to earth its work for our redemption will be ineffectual and unavailing."

President Back in Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20.—President Roosevelt returned to the city at 7:30 o'clock this morning from New York. The president's daughter, Ethel, returned with him, the other members of the party being Dr. Grrie, the president's physician, and Mr. and Mrs. Cortelyou. Mrs. Roosevelt will remain in New York for a day or two.

A NEW PASTOR'S FIRST SERMON

THE REV. DR. E. A. BLAKE BEGAN HIS WORK HERE YESTERDAY.

The Successor of the Rev. Henry Baker at Christ M. E. Church Took for the Subject of His Morning Discourse, the Theme: "Immortality."

The Rev. Dr. Edwin A. Blake, recently appointed pastor of the Christ Methodist Episcopal church to succeed the Rev. Henry Baker, preached his first sermon in that church yesterday morning. Dr. Blake was given a warm reception by a church packed to the doors. At the conclusion of the morning service the congregation was introduced to him.

During the course of his sermon, the subject of which was "Immortality in This World," Dr. Blake said: "This is a most startling thought. It summons into action forces in our nature that have slept long. We now find it necessary to believe in immortality not simply to get even with sin, but as a place where we may see the complete development of our highest thoughts. It has been the thought of man through all time to realize this great thought—immortality. I fear that in our strenuous desire for the immortal we are leaving things behind us every day.

"An immortal in this world, even though he be of the greatest, avails little if he has not looked to the life beyond. The holy apostles, without doubt, are in the realms everlasting; yet their works, written 20 centuries ago, still live and accomplish. They accomplish more good now than ever. They sought not the immortality of this world, but of that to come.

"This world-immortality was that enjoyed by the great authors of the past. When Dickens shall have been forgotten then reforms created by his matchless pen will still be felt within the world."

CHRIST IN POLITICS.

The Rev. A. D. Mink Tells How Christians Might Follow Their Leader Here.

"If Christ Came to Pittsburgh" was the subject of the Rev. Arthur D. Mink's sermon last night in the Emory Methodist Episcopal church.

Taking for his text "Surely I will come quickly," he said in part: "Whatever Christ would do, that the disciple must follow. There is a direct obligation upon every Christian to take an interest in political life. This world belongs to God. Sin has entrenched itself behind the bulwarks of politics, but must be turned out. No man has a right to omit that part of the Lord's prayer: 'Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven.'

"The influence of a Christian in political life becomes an incentive," said Mr. Mink. "What might not a policeman, a councilman, a mayor, a senator, a governor do if these positions were used as means for service? No man should follow party farther than is right. Ruts are good things to keep out of. The offering or accepting of a bribe should be made impossible by an awakened Christian sentiment. Ministers and merchants, lawyers and physicians and mechanics should attend the primaries. Above all, let no man fear to stand in the minority. The whole political field must be infused with the spirit of the Gospel. A motto for the politician is: 'Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink, or whatever ye do, do all to the glory of God.'"

LABOR, CAPITAL, CHRISTIANITY, ARE ESSENTIALS

The Rev. Father Michael Tells of Them as the "Triple Alliance."

BIG CROWD HEARD TALK

Bijou Theater Was Packed to Hear Yesterday's Lecture, in Series, Inaugurated by Passionist Missionary for Non-Catholics.

The Rev. Father Michael, C. P.

The Bijou theater was crowed to the doors yesterday afternoon with probably one of the most enthusiastic audiences that has attended the lectures to non-Catholics inaugurated by the Passionist missionary, the Rev. Father Michael, C. P. The subject of yesterday's discourse was "Labor, Capital and Christianity." Previous to the discourse there was a sacred concert. Miss Lillian Semmelrock and the choir from St. Michael's church being the singers. Father Michael then answered several questions addressed him as inquiries into certain doctrines of Catholicism. During the course of his lecture he said in part:

The Triple Alliance.

Labor, capital and Christianity form the triple alliance, which must grace and crown the twentieth century. If our age worships this truly blessed trinity, then art and science, natural prosperity, public morality, social purity, individual and national happiness, religion and patriotism must alike flourish. Add to capital and labor Christianity. Because labor is unbearable, and capital ruled with an iron rod. The great mission therefore of Christ and His church was, is and always will be, to consecrate labor, to mellow capital and to unite both under the teachings of the Gospel and the radiant lights and warmth of charity.

Way to Settle Trouble.

In view of all this, as well as the many strikes and labor difficulties, with which all are more or less familiar, I know of no subject more suitable and profitable than the one I have chosen. Baptise and christianize labor and capital, both under the sweet and permanent influence of Jesus Christ and His church—and you have converted this wide world of ours into the holiest paradise that can be created this side of heaven.

Labor and capital are two benedictions that depend upon each other. Labor without capital means nothing, and capital without labor can do nothing. They are the right and left hand of human society.

It is frivolous on the part of labor to pour out gall against wealth and capital, and just as irrational to launch out in acrimonious threats against labor and the operative classes.

Labor Must Be Considered.

There is no laborer who would not be wealthy if he could only become so, and no one would be poor if he could prevent it. To grasp the full meaning of labor and capital we must consider labor in itself, and in its effects, in its unions, in its strikes and in its fruits.

Labor is the baptism of penance, in which each one of us must be deeply immersed if he wishes to enjoy health and happiness. Be not deceived. The truest, purest, most lasting wealth and happiness in the hearts and the homes of the poorest, honest laborer than can be found under the glitter of wealth, and between the walls of gilded residences. The much envied homes of luxury are often no more than homes of gilded misery.

Industry Means Success.

Pursuing this line of thought, he developed the great ideas that labor and industry lead to success, idleness and indolence to pauperism and wretchedness. Labor is the parent of individual, domestic and national happiness. Idleness is the source of vicious habits and discord. I would rather see a lady's hands turkey red from honest labor than lily white from baneful idleness. Labor is the mine wherein grows healthy morality. It is the handmaid to Christian faith, to piety, generosity and charity. The fruits of labor are temporal and eternal, national and spiritual, temporal and natural fruits are the brest earned—the spiritual and eternal fruits are the merits of Christ, for labor is the road to the kingdom of heaven. Let not the wage-earner squander what he has made in wild carnivals and miserable indulgence to disgraceful passions.

THE STORY OF MOHAMMED.

The Rev. Dr. Thoburn Spoke on the Life of the Great Arabian.

"Jesus and Mohammed" was the subject of the Rev. Dr. J. M. Thoburn's sermon last night in Calvary Methodist Episcopal church, Allegheny.

He said in part: "Mohammed is one of the most contradictory characters in history. He began life by searching after the truth and ended his days by teaching man to believe a gigantic fable. He was good 32 years and bad 11 years. Politics and prosperity ruined him. He was one of the religious castaways.

"Like all the great founders of religion he was born in Asia, that seminary among the continents whence have gone forth truths which have shaped the religious thought of the entire human race.

"The dark ages had just settled the pall of night over the known world when Mohammed was born in the pilgrim city of Mecca. He was called 'the trusty.' He was naturally religious, was given to dreams and visions and epilepsy. He was sure he could improve the religion of the nation. In a dream he was called to the work of a prophet and at once began to preach the unity of God and the sin of idolatry.

"He did not make many converts, and after 13 years of failure, he began to propagate his doctrines by the sword and adapt them to the sinful prejudices of men.

"The end justifies the means,' was Mohammed's motto. He soon conquered Arabia, and made the obscure shepherd tribes a world power. He wrote and compiled the Koran. There are many sublime teachings scattered through the book, but he added not a word to the world's truth. All that is worth reading in it was borrowed from the Old and New Testaments."

THE THREE RIVERS.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CINCINNATI, April 20.—River 25.9 feet and falling fast. Clear and pleasant. The Jack Frost went up to the rescue of the Eagle, which was out on her second trip, and ran through herself at a point below Vanceburg yesterday. The Sam Clark passed down for Louisville with a tow of coal. The Iron Age arrived and left here and went back. The Wash. Bonshell arrived from the Tennessee river with a tow of lumber and went back. The James Moore is due this morning from above. The Virginia left for Pittsburgh tonight.

LOUISVILLE—River falling, with 8 feet 2 inches on the falls, 10 feet 4 inches in the canal. Clear and cool. Ed. T. Jeffries and the locks. Raining and warm. Arrivals and departures were: Indiana from and to Cincinnati, Tarascon from Evansville, City of Cincinnati from Cincinnati, Falls City from and to Kentucky river, Coal City and Ed Roberts with tows from Pittsburgh and return, W. W. O'Neill from New Orleans, Benz from New Orleans for Pittsburgh, Jessie M. T. from and tow from Cincinnati to Memphis. The City of Pittsburgh disaster was the sole topic among river men at this port. The J. B. Finley, with 40 boats, got away for New Orleans this evening.

MEMPHIS—River 33.9 feet, a fall of .5 of a foot in 24 hours. The Defender, with a tow of empty coal boats from New Orleans, arrived last night and is now cleaning out. The Beaver arrived this morning from the Ohio river with a tow of salt.

STEUBENVILLE—River 10 feet and falling. Clear and pleasant. Keystone State, 2 p. m.; Kanawha, 1 p. m.; John Moren, 1 p. m.; Ironsides, 4 p. m. Down, Raymond Horner, 6:30 p. m.

MARIETTA—River 11 feet and falling. Pleasant. Virginia down, 5 p. m.; Lorena for Zanesville, 4 p. m.

WARREN—River, 2.8 feet. Weather, clear and warm.

BROWNSVILLE—River, 6.4 feet and falling. Weather, clear.

Packets Leaving Today.

Ben Hur, Parkersburg, noon.
Kenstone State, Cincinnati, 4 p. m.

News of the Rivers.

The incoming Ohio river packets will today unload considerable poultry and eggs.

The following boats arrived: Pacific, Tornado and W. C. Jutte.

Davis island dam—The stage of water at 9 o'clock last night was 7.7 feet and falling.

The Kanawha departs tomorrow for Charleston. Capt. W. S. Roe is now commander and chief clerk.

The following boats went down the river yesterday: Fred Wilson, 7 boats and 5 flats; Volunteer, 6 boats and 3 flats, and the Joseph Walton, 6 barges.

Capt. B. F. Perkins, grand captain's clerk of the National Harbor, Master and Pilots, writes to P. S. Brown that he expects to visit the harbors of the west this summer.

Capt. Wes Does of Cincinnati, the veteran pilot, was a round-trip passenger on the City of Pittsburgh. Capt. Does has an immense collection of photos of all the fine steamboats of ante-bellum days, including the photos of the gunboats that took part in the war on the Mississippi river.

Capt. Augustus Brown, the veteran steamboatman, was well acquainted with old John Robinson, the circus man. Capt. Brown was in charge of the steamer Cooney that transported the Robinson show from Pittsburgh to the south, taking in all the tributaries. This was over 20 years ago, and beats all records of a circus traveling by steamboat, no show before or since having accomplished the feat. The trip was made without accident.

Valuable Ring Lost.

While riding on a Center avenue street car yesterday Dr. Frank Phillips of No. 2139 Wylie avenue lost a diamond valued at $300 out of the setting of his ring. Dr. Phillips boarded the car at Bria street. When the car reached Soho he missed the diamond. Every effort was made to find the jewel in the car, but the attempt was unsuccessful. The jewel was two and three-quarters carats in weight and was presented to him by some friends several years ago. Dr. Phillips believes that he lost the stone when getting on the car, as he knocked the ring against the side of the car when boarding it.

Review of Market Quotations

PITTSBURGH PRICES FOR FARM PRODUCTS

Stronger Hay and Grain Situation—Flour Higher and Sugar Lower.

Summary For Last Week.

Hay and grains have shown considerable improvement in strength during the week, prices advancing for several lines. There is a marked scarcity of top grades of hay, and quotations are very firm. Corn, both car and shelled, advanced several times in the last few days, the lightness of receipts influencing the tone of the market. Oats have also been on the upward move, and close the week much stronger than at the opening.

Flour has been much firmer, and is now higher than for several weeks. The actual ruling price seems to be about $4 10, with the condition of the market really warranting a higher price. Coffee is unchanged, while sugar has declined and is still weak. Navy beans are firmer.

No changes have occurred in canned goods or dried fruits, the markets being steady, with demand strong and active. Tomatoes continue to sell readily, while apots are moving steadily, and will be exhausted before the coming of new packs.

In the potato market there is a very strong condition of affairs. Early in the week a much stronger tone became evident, and there has been a gradual advance in quotations. What will be the future of the situation is hard to determine, advances starting at this season having been in other years followed by very much increased quotations. Whether this is going to be the case now cannot be predicted, although higher prices are expected this week. Cabbage is making a strong rally, and will close the season at high figures. All other lines are steady, with quotations for green stuff averaging lower than they did a week ago.

California oranges are firm, and have advanced slightly. Aside from this there is nothing really new in the tropical fruit situation. California pears have disappeared from the market.

Butter is coming forward fairly well, although there is a scarcity of second grade, top quality stock being in fair supply. Dealers are expecting another advance today. Cheese is unchanged. Eggs are in light receipt, and have held steady all week. Still higher values in prospect if arrivals show no increase today.

Poultry is still scarce and high. At the close of the week there was some little improvement in receipts of chickens, but not enough to affect prices, nor is it likely there will be any great abundance of poultry during the spring.

Another advance in provision prices becomes effective today.

EXCHANGES FALLING OFF.

Local Bank Clearings for the Week Over $4,000,000 Less Than a Year Ago.

Pittsburgh bank exchanges for the week ending yesterday were a little over $4,000,000 less than those for the same week a year ago, but about $1,100,000 larger than those for the preceding week. The total for the year to date now stands at about $2,500,000 less than at the same time a year ago. Yesterday's exchanges also showed a loss of $460,000. The local money market appears a shade easier than it has been for some time, but is still somewhat mixed, being easy and firm in spots. The rate for call and time loans remains without change at 5@6 per cent.

The detailed clearing house reports are as follows:

	Exchanges.	Balances.
Yesterday	$6,818,515 17	$ 849,063 65
Previous Saturday	7,540,743 02	1,083,265 72

NEGRO GAMBLERS HAD A HOT TIME AT GREENTREE

Contractors Made Short Work of Three Visitors from the City.

LABORERS WERE SCARED

Interrupted Sport Given a Vacation of Fully an Hour While Colored Players Recovered From Shock of Lone Policeman's Fusillade.

When loud cries and the rattle of firearms awoke the citizens of Greentree borough early yesterday morning they thought that the negro laborers in the Wabash tunnel camp had surely broken loose at last. First the stillness of the night was broken by shouts, then the reports of a half-dozen revolvers were heard. There was silence for awhile, followed by the patter of feet on the country road, and presently three dim forms shot by, encouraging one another to redoubled haste by such remarks as: "Fo' de Lawd's sake, run! Yo' kain't win no money in Kenefick's camp."

When the lone policeman of the borough, W. W. Davis, scattered by in the darkness a few minutes later, totally unconcerned, excited citizens hailed him from their windows and wanted to know what was the matter.

Only Three Gamblers.

"Oh, we just ran three town coon gamblers out of the camp," said Davis. "It was pay day, you know, and they wanted to win the laborers' money; so we gave them a taste of rural police methods."

Rural quiet overspread the borough yesterday afternoon and down in the negro camp there was no evidence of the strenuous quarter of an hour of the night before. Some of the black men sat about in front of their shanties, lolling in the pleasant sunshine, watching the trees and shrubbery ready to bud, and speculating on the quantity of fruit that the orchards are just bursting into bloom promised to furnish the negro night forager in the early fall.

Chickens Apparently Safe.

Where a citizen's fence yard skirted the laborers' settlement unsuspecting chickens pecked for early worms and sprouting grass, and though mouths might water, not a hand was stretched forth to detain a fowl.

Whatever liveliness there might be was confined to the shanties. About the doors interested groups were gathered gazing inside, occasionally guffawing with glee, while from the doorways floated remarks that indicated something interesting going on.

"Come seben, come 'leben!" "Come up dah, little Dick!" "Ah, honey dice, bring yo' baby luck!" "Lovely nickel, yo' is mine!" These were some of the remarks audible outside. Occasionally a deep voice burst out with: "I calls yo,' nigger, an' I'se got yo' beat!" followed by an exclamation of disgust in a different voice. It was apparent that the absence of town gamblers made but little difference.

Insist on Gambling.

The negro construction hand will gamble, and contractors have found it impossible to keep their men if orders prohibiting gambling are enforced. It is an evil that may be regulated, however, and the bosses at Kenefick & Co.'s camp have reduced its effects to a minimum. It was pay day at the camp Saturday and the quiet and order that reigned yesterday is the usual sequel of pay day, disinterested residents of the borough said yesterday. If the men must gamble, they are told, the gambling must be among themselves, "tin horns" from the city being strictly barred. It was three of the latter genus that got into the camp on Saturday night, for, despite Policeman Davis' vigilance, he can't patrol every part of his long beat at all times.

"Town Coons" Had to Go.

When it was reported to the camp and to the policeman that three "town coons" had slipped in and were engaged in a game preparations were made to run them out. Davis and some of the white men in the camp started up the hill, making as much noise as possible and firing off revolvers in the air. The three gamblers forgot their chips in their excitement and broke into a run. As an illustration that such methods are rarely needed, and that therefore bad men from town have a wholesome regard for the discipline of the camp, it may be remarked that the camp laborers themselves were scared by the sudden attack and did not resume the game for an hour. It is believed that no more short card visitors will venture into camp, but if one should slip in he will be either frightened away or railroaded as a vagrant to the workhouse.

The Camp's Location.

Kenefick & Co.'s camp is about midway on the route of the Greentree tunnel, on the Wabash railroad. At that point a shaft 120 feet deep goes down into the earth and the work of tunnel digging proceeds in both directions. The position of the camp is handy for the workmen at the shafts and at the east and west ends of the tunnel, which is to be 7,400 feet long. Many of the negroes are skilled workmen and draw $2 50 a day for drilling, and some of them save their money, leaving it on deposit with the firm. H. S. Moore, the superintendent of the tunnel work at that point, said that the camp is as quiet after pay day as at any other time. There is no liquor to be had nearer than the West End. When the work was first begun liquor was brought into camp in wagons by illicit traders. It has not been necessary to prosecute any of these, but the contractors were so firm when the nuisance first started that illegal whisky sellers now give the neighborhood a wide berth.

JURY COULD NOT AGREE.

Negro Charged With Murder of St. Louis Millionaire Gets Another Trial.

ST. LOUIS, April 20.—The jury in the case against William Strother, the negro charged with the murder of A. Deane Cooper, the millionaire who was killed in a bath house several months ago, was unable to agree on a verdict after being out all last night, and at an early hour this morning was discharged by Judge Ryan.

According to the statement of one of the jurors, the first ballot stood six for conviction and six for acquittal. On the second ballot, one of the jurors changed his vote from conviction to acquittal. The other ballots showed no change.

Strother was present in court when the jury was discharged and appeared very much relieved over the outcome of the trial. His case will go over to the fall term of court.
